Money expected to pose problem for preservation

by STEVE BROWN

Backers of the proposed Des Plaines prairie preservation have learned there may be substantial cost to complete the project, but are optimistic that the work could be accomplished.

Officials from the Des Plaines Bicentennial Commission, the city and the park district and a number of interested citizens met Wednesday with R. B. Taylor of the Chicago and North Western Ry. to discuss the preservation of a 25-acre tract just south of the Northwest Highway S-curve near the Wieboldt's Distribution Center.

Taylor voiced a number of concerns about potential accident liability and access to the area, which is surrounded by railroad right-of-way.

While stating the chances of the railroad approving plans to preserve the prairie could be as great as "1,000 to 1," Taylor said he believes the arrangement could be made to save a major portion of the property if sufficient safeguards are observed.

DAVE WOLF, chairman of the bicentennial Commission, said Thursday he was quite optimistic about the possibility of making the project a reality.

"I think the people who are committed to this project have a clearer understanding of what needs to be done," Wolf added. He said a number of persons who reside near the prairie site and are interested in the preservation of the land said the meeting with Taylor was the most ever accomplished with the project in many years.

Des Plaines Park District officials said it will cost as much as $14,000 to install an eight-foot fence around the property.

The group also discussed the construction of a footbridge over the railroad tracks as a means of providing access to the property. It was estimated that the bridge could cost at least $10,000.

Taylor said if the access and liabilities could be worked out the railroad could consider either leasing or selling the property outright to some local agency such as the park district.

HOWEVER, HE ADDED that the railroad could not sell the property for $1 an acre because of financial commitments North Western has with various banks. Taylor would not estimate what the land might cost.

Wolf agreed that discussion of the total costs or methods of financing are still some time off because of other details which must be satisfield.

Proponents of the project are hoping to enlist the support of area school officials. It has been proposed that the prairie would be used primarily for outdoor education classes on supervised field trips.

LWV to launch fund drive as part of Support Week

The Des Plaines chapter of the League of Women Voters will begin its annual finance drive next week in the city as one of the main activities during Community Support Week for the league.

Mayor Herbert Behrel has proclaimed June 3-10 as Community Support Week for the League of Women Voters.

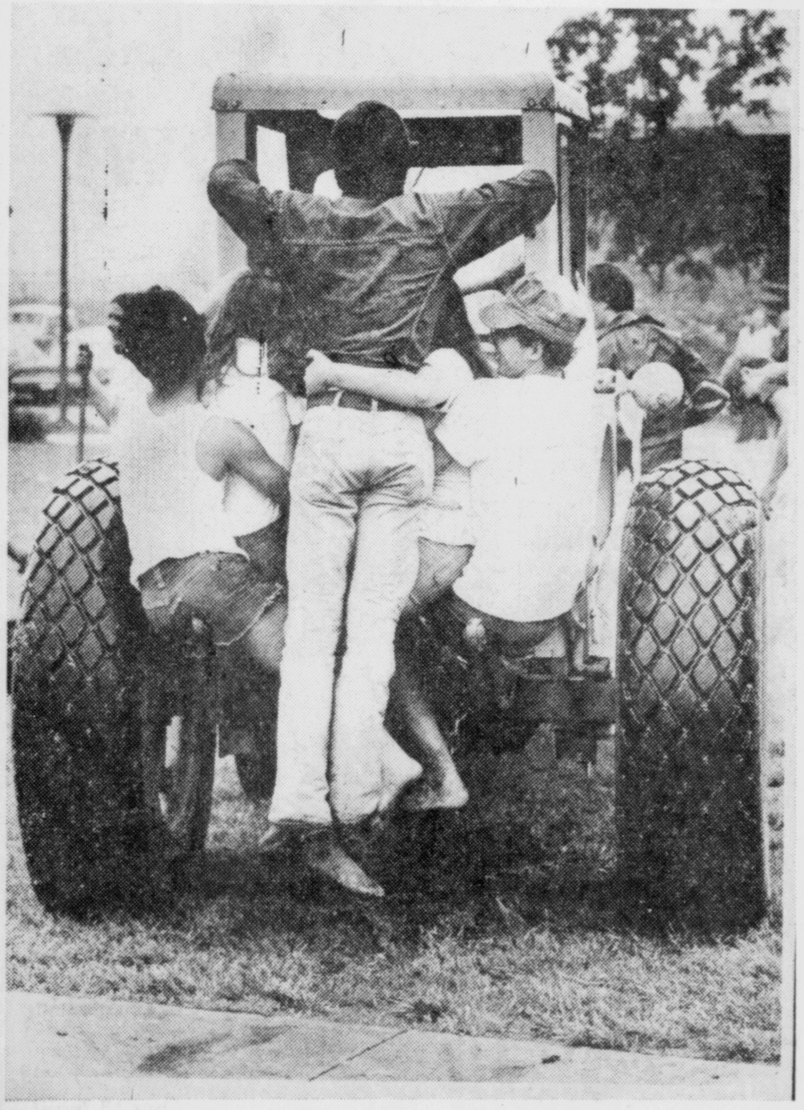
The annual event is sponsored by the League to help raise funds to support various activities and services sponsored by the League.

The League traditionally coordinates candidates' nights, publishes the "Voter's Guide" and provides information on voter registration.

The group has opened its ranks to men for the first time. Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker was one of the first men in the state to join the organization.

In his proclamation, Behrel cited the league for their continuous efforts to assist the public through its voter services and public information program.

More information about joining the league or the programs and activities sponsored by the league can be obtained by calling the group's membership chairman, Mrs. Leo McNaney at 299-4180.



STUDENTS AT HERSEY High School did some tree planting and landscaping this week, and also got a tractor ride. See Page 6.

CORNY MAKEUP makes for a funny face and Norm Fruhauf pencils on the finishing touches while John Colwell, another member of "Chuckles Unlimited," a Des Plaines Moose lodge clown group, stands ready.

'Chuckles Unlimited'

Moose members become clowns to entertain kids

by JOHN MAES

Call Norm Fruhauf a clown and he'll probably stand up, look you right in the eye and say "You're darned right I am and don't you forget it."

And a similar sentiment would probably be expressed by Fruhauf's comic companions in the Des Plaines Moose Lodge who take the name of "Chuckles Unlimited" and have delighted many children and adults with their buffoonery.

The group, sponsored by the lodge, 205 N. River Rd., consists of seven members who every so often paint on their burlesque makeup, don the oafish clothing and fake noses and put on their act.

FRUHAUF, 26, WHO lives in Chicago with his wife and child, said the troupe likes to specialize in entertaining children in hospitals and in homes for the mentally retarded, along with company picnics and Christmas parties.

"You just get ticked off about all the bad things going on in the world today. We're not paying enough attention to the kids in the hospitals and homes. Whatever I can do for them, I'm all for it."

His personality, disposition and willingness to make the most of a joke puts a clear perspective on why he enjoys being a clown.

"If I see something funny, no matter what it is or where it is, I do it," he said.

Despite their love of clowning, Fruhauf and one of his fellow Moose jesters, John Colwell, 24, of Mount Prospect, admit they never used to marvel at clowns at circuses. "It's not like we used to go all the time," said Fruhauf.

THE CLOWNS' SKITS, magic tricks, comic antics are usually changed every few months to keep the act from going stale.

Highlight of the act, however, is John Sebastian of Des Plaines who toured with the Harlem Globetrotters — those clowns of basketball — in the late 1940s. The basketball whiz is known as Mr. "Two Hands."

Fruhauf and the clowns never let a bad day or mood hurt their performance. "You can't have a bad day," he said. "When you get that costume on you have to be a clown. If you had a bad night, that's too bad."

"I HAD TO KEEP cool," said Colwell remembering one night when a little boy, six or seven, committed a crime as serious as pulling Santa's beard. The youngser smashed Colwell's fake nose.

Fruhauf manages to obtain most of his costumes through Salvation Army and rummage sales but said some of the clowns have spent up to $500 outfitting themselves in the various clodhoppers, oversized tuxes and oother regalia.

"It's fun," said Fruhauf. "We're proud of the organization."

Preschool offers activities for summer

A tour of a bagel factory, fire station, ice cream parlor, Brookfield Zoo, Lincoln Park Zoo, Museum of Science and Industry and other activities will supplement the regular study courses for Preschool Education Center students during the eight-week summer program June 24 through Aug. 16.

The activities are designed to contribute to the child's total development and knowledge of the world around him. Indoor and outdoor games, arts and crafts, creative play, exercise, nature walks and cookouts are among fun items on the summer curriculum.

Learning activities such as Spanish, speech, drama and music, safety studies, health rules, swimming, social development and field trips will also help the child to enjoy a fulfilling and inspiring summer.

Registration for the summer program is open and information can be obtained from either of the PEC centers at 9000 Home Ave., Des Plaines — 296-5644 or 4127 Main St., Skokie — 677-8252.

Ministers' association to honor graduates

The Ministerial Assn. of Des Plaines has chosen Sunday, June 9, as graduating senior day, to honor the high school seniors who are a part of their congregations.

At the Association's recent meeting, the ministers voted to set aside a portion of the worship service to speak to and to honor the graduating seniors.

The Rev. Garry A. Scheuer, Jr., senior minister at First Congregational Church and vice president of the Des Plaines Ministerial Association, said, "We feel the church has an important obligation to the young people who have by their education and maturity, already entered the adult world, and must now take on the responsibilities of college or employment.

The Association extends an invitation to the seniors and their parents to worship at the church of their choice on that Sunday.

O'Hare plant court ruling due in June

City officials are expecting a ruling from the Illinois Supreme Court late next month on a lawsuit seeking to enforce its zoning and building ordinances over the construction of the O'Hare Water Treatment Plant in Des Plaines.

Des Plaines Corporation Counsel Robert DiLeonardi presented the city's argument to the high court Wednesday in Springfield. The city has been fighting construction of the plant since 1966.

He said Thursday that the city could expect to receive the Supreme Court decision either late next month or in early July. The proposed Metropolitan Sanitary District plant will be located at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.

THE CITY IS SEEKING to have the Supreme Court uphold a ruling by the Illinois Appellate Court granting Des Plaines a full trial of its contention that the home rule authority granted by the 1970 Illinois Constitution gives Des Plaines the right to enforce its ordinance over the MSD project.

The city lost an earlier case in 1972, but reinstituted court action after the home provisions became law. A Cook County Circuit Court judge ruled that the issues in the case had not been changed substantially and refused to grant a new trial, but the appellate court overturned that decision last year.

DiLeonardi said the Supreme Court justices asked "penetrating questions" of both the city and the MSD regarding the plans for the facility. However, he would not speculate as to what the final outcome of the case might be.

DiLeonardi said the court noted a recent decision involving Rockford and Winnebago County over the right to use land in the county as a landfill for refuse. In that dispute, the court ruled the landfill could be used, but all requirements of the Illinois and U.S. Environmental Protection Agencies must be met.

WHILE THE Supreme Court decision plays an important role in the road toward creation of the plant, some city officials have noted there are a number of other conditions the MSD must meet before the plant is actually constructed.

According to Ald. Richard Ward (8th) who has been one of the leaders in the fight to have the city set some standards for the facility, the MSD must obtain approval of no less than seven state and federal agencies in order to qualify for government grants for the design and construction of the plant.

Ward and other city officials believe the city might have an opportunity to enforce local controls and ordinances under the regulations of the U.S. and Illinois EPA. Both groups state that local environmental standards must be met before funds can be approved for the project.

Most of the objections have come from persons who live near the site of the proposed plant who contend the facility could pose a health hazard to their nearby residential areas.

THE MSD APPLIED last year for funds to study the feasibility of building a portion of the plant underground, but city officials said the entire facility should be built below ground if it cannot be relocated away from the adjacent homes.

The city council is considering several ordinances setting down guidelines for the construction of sewage treatment plants and some officials have indicated there may be more stringent ordinances proposed in the near future. Among the restrictions set down in the ordinances is a requirement that all portions of any sewage treatment facility must be covered and that all emissions from the plant be purified before being released into the atmosphere.

End of the road for a busline...

Commuter bus service by Metron Systems Corp. in Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove will end today because the company is losing $4,500 a month. Arlington Heights officials have not answered a letter from Metron that sought a method of continuing service for about 100 daily round-trip riders, company Pres. Claude Luisada said.

Monkey on the loose

An excaped monkey has avoided capture since Monday in Mount Prospect. The pet monkey, purchased by Michael Suarez, 300 S. Lancaster St., escaped from its cage and has lodged in trees behind 309 S. Waverly Pl. Firemen failed to reach the monkey and an animal trainer failed to find a chemical tranquilizer that would not harm the animal.

Money key in preservation

Cost of a proposed prairie preservation project in the Des Plaines Park District may be substantial, but bicentennial commission backers of the plan were optimistic about completion after a meeting Wednesday. The project would preserve 25 acres south of the Northwest Highway S-curve near the Wieboldt's Distribution Center. An eight-foot fence around the land could cost $14,000 and a footbridge to the property could cost $10,000, park officials estimated. An official of the Chicago and North Western Ry., which owns the property, said if access and liability for injury are worked out, the railroad will consider selling or leasing the land.

Unit-study fee returned

A consultant to the Unit District Feasibility Committee in Schaumburg Townshp has returned a $4,750 payment after some school officials criticized his report. "If they don't feel I have done a good job, then I don't want their money," consultant Ralph Belnap said. The controversial report recommended splitting school district boundaries to form new unit districts along community lines.

Arlington Park open Monday

Arlington Park Race Track opens its 84-day season Monday with track officials expecting one of the most successful summers in five years. Hopes are high because of the choice summer racing dates and a 7 to 10 per cent increase in betting and attendance at Sportsman's Park, which opened Chicago's thoroughbred racing season this spring.

Plant ruling in June?

An Illinois Supreme Court ruling is expected late next month in the dispute between Des Plaines and the Metropolitan Sanitary District over a proposed sewage treatment plant on the city's west side. The court heard arguments in the case Wednesday.

No hospital permit conflict

An Illinois Senate subcommittee found no conflict of interest by the director of the state comprehensive health planning agency in approving a satellite hospital permit for Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital in Schaumburg. Dr. Mark Lepper is a salaried staff member of the hospital. The subcommittee report released Thursday said new standards for approving hospital construction are needed in Illinois.

Wheeling hearings on Bieber?

Three Wheeling trustees called Thursday for public hearings to determine whether Building Director William Bieber should be fired. Trustee Don Jackson said he believes Bieber's admission on a state-required ethics form that Bieber accepted a gift worth more than $500 from a developer is grounds for dismissal. Bieber said the gift was a Miami vacation. He and political strongman James Stavros are accused of extorting the Miami vacation from Pekin Corp., the firm listed by Bieber on his ethics statement.

No progress yet in negotiations on trucker strike

Negotiators remain deadlocked in an attempt to end a 6-day-old strike of cement truckdrivers despite 4½ hours of bargaining yesterday officated by federal mediators.

Drivers are seeking a $3.75 per hour salary increase over the next three years, while their employers, the Illinois Ready Mix Materials Assn., are offering $1.50 more per hour. Neither side budged from their positions yesterday in a meeting at the Oak Brook Hyatt House Hotel. No further talks have been slated.

The strikers, represented by seven Teamsters locals, number about 3,000 drivers. Their action has jeopardized "very close to $100 million a day" in construction in Cook, DuPage, Kane, Kendall, Lake, McHenry and Will counties, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

WHILE THE TRUCK drivers' strike continued, toll collectors on Illinois' three tollway systems returned to work yesterday with a new three-year contract. They replaced supervisory and administrative personnel who took their place for nine days.

A spokesman for Local 73 of the General Service Employes Union said the new three-year pact provides for a 23-cent-an-hour raise, retroactive to the first of the year, with another 6-cent raise July 1. The toll collectors agreed to a 29-cent-an-hour raise for each of the second and third years of the contract.

The contract they accepted was the same one they rejected before the walkout began. Officials attribute the agreement at these terms on a split in sentiment on the part of the toll collectors, many of whom did not follow their representatives when they went on strike.

Bumpers, Biden to speak at Senate Dem fund raiser

Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers and U.S. Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware will speak at the Illinois Senate Democratic fund-raising dinner here June 12.

The announcement was made Wednesday by state Senate Democratic leaders.

Bumpers Tuesday won the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination in his state, defeating incumbent Sen. J. William Fulbright. Biden was elected to the Senate in 1972 at the age of 29, becoming the youngest person ever to win election to that body.

Memorial Day bill

State Representative Giddy Dyer, R-Hinsdale, has introduced a bill to return Illinois' Memorial Day celebration to the last Monday in May — the same day recognized by Congress.

The General Assembly last year changed the date of the celebration from the federal holiday to its traditional May 30. The result Mrs. Dyer said Wednesday, was "a confusing nightmare for the people of Illinois."

A similar bill has been introduced by Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glencoe.

The weekly wrapup of congressional activities will be found today on Page 9.

'Top legislators'

State Sen. David C. Shapiro, R-Amboy, and State Rep. Paul Stone, D-Sullivan have been named the outstanding Illinois legislators by the Illinois Community College Trustees Assn.

The awards were made Wednesday at the group's annual banquet meeting. They were the first such awards presented by the association.

New air carrier rules?

The new rules will apply to all air carriers operating within the state. Included will be certification of each air carrier, financial reporting requirements, equipment registration, flight safety, and insurance and rate regulation.

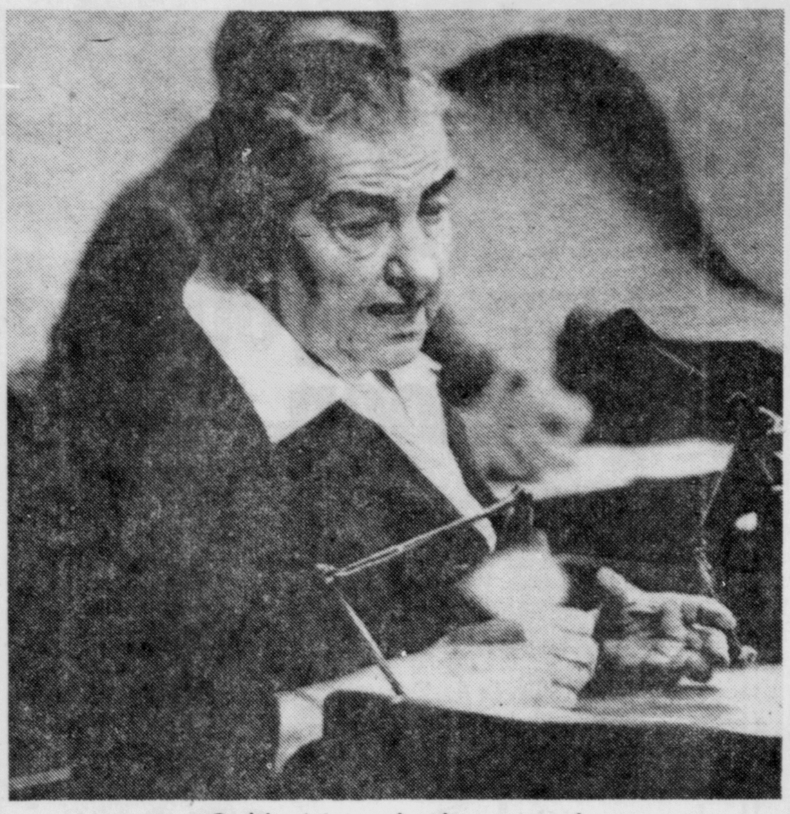
Golda Meir bows out 'happy to leave' for new life



Golda Meir: the last speech

JERUSALEM (UPI) — It was her swan song, her farewell. She started it with a smile and finished it with a grin and a shrug that dismissed an offer of thanks.

Golda Meir laughed and joked with aides prior to taking the podium in the Knesset (parliament) for her final speech as prime minister.

She appeared relaxed and strong for a woman of 76 who had just endured 32 days of whirlwind diplomacy and approved a pact of life-or-death importance to her people.

She was a picture of confidence that snuffed out the last cigarette and stepped to the lectern, shoulders slightly hunched.

Golda Meir stepped ashore in Palestine in 1921 from Milwaukee as a devout Zionist and never looked back in climbing to foreign minister and, in 1969, prime minister of Israel.

Now she was introducing for approval a Golan Heights disengagement pact that was yet another piece in the puzzle of a Middle East peace she thought she'd never see.

The past 63 months in office alone had brought an all out war and guerrilla attacks ranging in scope from the Lod airport massacre to the bloodbath two weeks ago at Maalot.

Her voice was slow but firm. She never looked up from the text, ignoring eight noisy demonstrators who sprang up with shouts and signs that she had sold the nation out.

Silence gripped the house. The nation listened over transistor radios. It was the last they would see or hear from her as their leader.

Her hair was in the usual bun and she was wearing her blue dress with the white collar. No makeup.

For 20 minutes she spoke nonstop of the October war, of the problems of settling the score with the Arabs, of bringing home the prisoners, of the monumental work of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"I'm happy to leave my post," she said.

Then she was finished. She scooped up her papers and walked down the steps to her chair at the head of the horseshoe-shaped cabinet table. Another cigarette.

Knesset Speaker Israel Yeshayahu said there would be official thanks for her later. She smiled and shrugged. It wasn't necessary.

Next week Golda Meir retires to a country kibbutz (collective farm) where she will put in four hours a day at such chores as washing dishes or ironing clothes.

Kissinger heads home, big mission over

From United Press International

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger headed home to Washington Thursday after the successful conclusion of his latest and toughest diplomatic mission, winning agreement from Israel and Syria to stop fighting on the Golan Heights and pull back their armies.

The historic agreement will be signed in Geneva Friday by military delegations from the two countries. It provides for an immediate cease-fire on the Golan Heights front where Israeli and Syrian forces exchanged artillery fire for the 80th consecutive day Thursday.

A senior American official with the Kissinger party said the United States would provide high altitude surveillance to assure that all the provisions were being carried out just as it does in the case of the Israeli-Egyptian disengagement accord.

Kissinger stopped off in Cairo to brief President Anwar Sadat, one of his chief allies in bringing about the agreement between Damascus and Jerusalem.

An extraordinary congress of the ruling Syrian Baath party Thursday unanimously approved the military agreement with Israel, and the Israeli parliament followed suit soon afterward.

Israeli and Syrian generals arrived in Geneva Thursday afternoon for the signing ceremony scheduled for 5 a.m. CDT Friday in the Council Chamber of the Palace of Nations, the U.N. European headquarters. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker of the U.S. and Vladimir Vinogradov of the Soviet Union, co-chairmen of the Middle East peace conference which is in recess, were to act as official observers.

Meanwhile, at U.N. headquarters in New York, Soviet and Chinese objections prevented quick action on a U.S. resolution authorizing a U.N. force to buffer the disengagement of Syrian and Israeli forces. Opponents insisted the new buffer force could not be created until the disengagement agreement was actually signed by Israel and Syria.

House subpoena, warning to Nixon

From United Press International

The House Judiciary Committee Thursday subpoenaed 45 more White House tapes and sent word to President Nixon that his refusal to comply with previously subpoenaed Watergate material might be grounds for impeachment.

The committee voted 37 to 1 to send its fourth subpoena to Nixon after voting 28 to 10 to send him a strongly worded letter rebuking him for not complying with the other three.

The latest subpoena demands that the White House produce for the committee's impeachment inquiry by 10 a.m. EDT June 10 more taped conversations between Nixon and his top aides regarding "Watergate and aftermath."

The conversations took place on 20 different days between Nov. 15, 1972 and June 4, 1973, nearly all of that period within the time covered by the committee in its eight days of closed hearings to receive Watergate evidence.

Rep. Edward Hutchison, R-Mich., cast the lone vote against issuing a fourth subpoena.

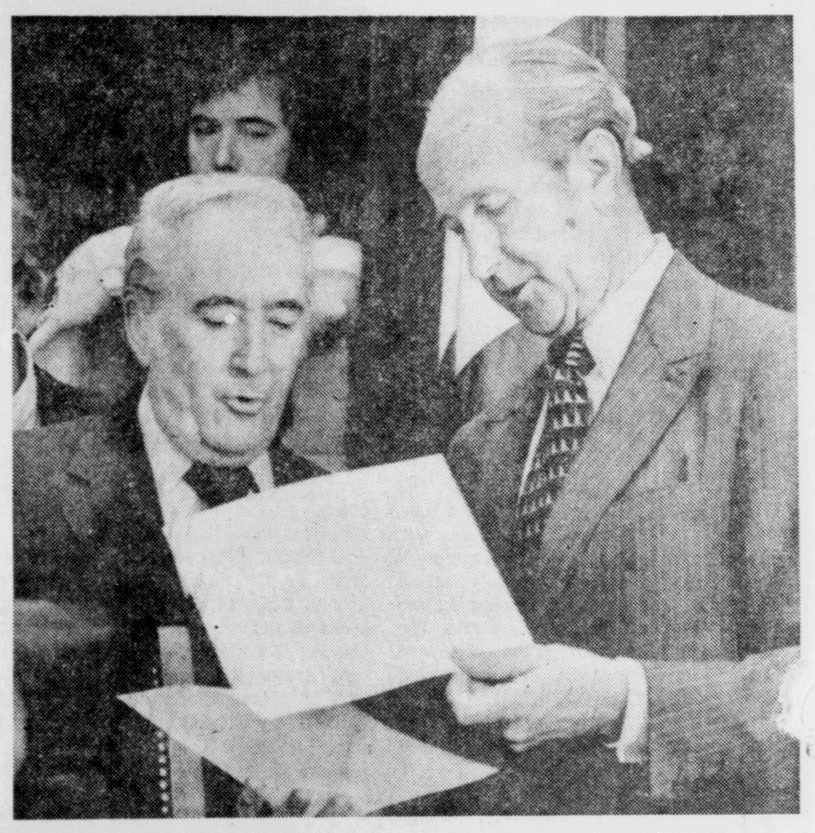
The letter suggesting there might be grounds for impeachment in Nixon's refusal to comply with the subpoenas was approved after an hour-long debate during which the committee shortened and slightly softened some of the language of the original draft written by the impeachment inquiry staff and introduced by U. S. Rep. Walter Flowers, D-Fla.

Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer told reporters Thursday that the committee should not draw an "adverse inference" because of the President's refusal to answer its subpoenas on the basis that it violated executive privilege. Claims of privilege are not the basis for such inferences, he said, unless they were made in bad faith which is not the case in this instance.

James D. St. Clair also said he would not object if the committee made public the entire record of its proceedings including tapes of presidential conversations.

Meanwhile, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica refused to pass along four White House Watergate tapes to the House Judiciary Committee, saying if impeachment investigators want them they will have to seek them directly from the President.

Sirica said he was powerless to grant a committee request to be permitted to hear full recordings of four Presidential conversations originally subpoenaed for the Watergate grand jury and now in the court's possession.



THE HOUSE JUDICIARY committee made a significant move in its skirmishing with President Nixon Thursday, drafting a letter to Nixon telling him his refusal to honor the committee's subpoenas might itself be grounds for impeachment. Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J. (left), and Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., reviewed its contents for newsmen. The committee then subpoenaed 45 more White House tapes.

President holding line on evidence

From Herald news services

President Nixon continued to hold the hard line Thursday on releasing any more White House material sought in various scandal investigations.

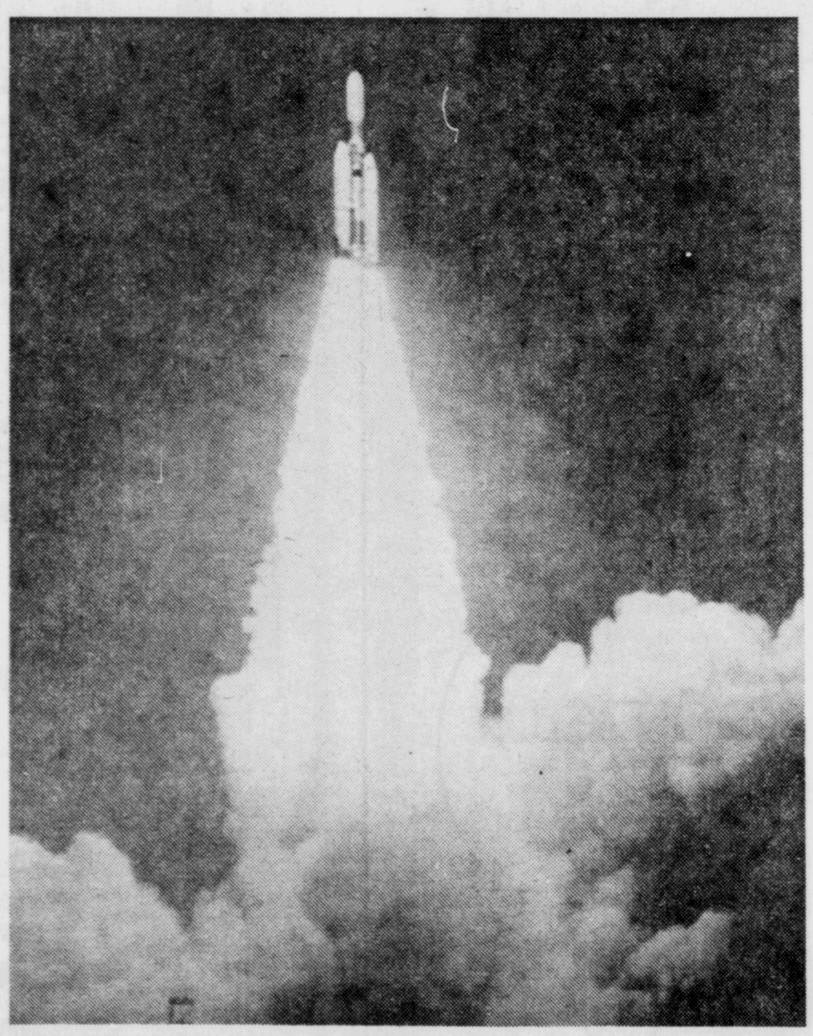
In separate developments:

• Nixon — through his lawyer James St. Clair — made it clear he will continue to withhold subpoenaed evidence he judges vital to the national security, even if it means that criminal charges will be dismissed against two of his former top aides. At issue are documents sought by attorneys for John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson, two of the five defendants to go on trial June 17 on charges of conspiracy in the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971.

Their claim is that the evidence would prove they acted in the name of national security, but St. Clair told U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell that while Nixon does not want the indictments dismissed, he will make the final decision on what will be turned over.

• Nixon asked the Supreme Court to avoid a "rush judgment" and let his dispute with Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski over subpoenaed tapes take its "orderly course" through the lower courts. Jaworski, blocked in his bid for 64 presidential tape recordings, asked the court to waive the normal appellate process and rule directly on the dispute so it would be settled in time for the Sept. 9 trial of seven former White House and campaign aides on Watergate cover-up charges.

• Citing executive privilege, Nixon endorsed the refusal of former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans to release subpoenaed evidence to a grand jury investigating alleged bribery and conspiracy in Nixon's campaign fund-raising. Nixon signed a formal claim of executive privilege saying it would be "inconsistent with the public interest" to turn over the material because it included discussions of "personnel selections and nominations." U.S. District Judge George Hart now must role on the claim, having already said some of the items should go to the grand jury.



A "PEOPLE'S SATELLITE" was fired from Cape Canaveral Thursday into stationary orbit 22,300 miles above the Pacific. Sparkman ends speculation: he'll seek Fulbright's job

The long period of introspection that Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., was expected to go through in mulling the chairmanship of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee came to an abrupt end Thursday. Sparkman, at home in Huntsville, said he'll ask for the job when it's vacated in January by Sen. J. William Fulbright, defeated in the Arkansas Democratic primary Tuesday. Sparkman, 74, said, "I sincerely hope my colleagues on the committee shall grant it," and discounted rumors that he might then not seek re-election in 1978.

For straying a bit from the good Communist life, Soviet Culture minister Yekaterina Furtseva got a reprimand from the party, but has made it clear she's staying in her job. Sources in Moscow said Mrs. Furtseva — the only woman minister in the Soviet government — was called on the carpet for building a $170,000 dacha outside Moscow and ordered to repay large sums to the state . . . a serious defection in Soviet musical ranks is said to be in the making, with the request of three more musicians — including world-famed pianist Sviatoslav Richter — for permission to live abroad for extended periods.

The national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars — Ray Soden of Bensenville — marked Memorial Day by saying Memorial Day ought to be celebrated on Memorial Day, which is May 30. Or which used to be May 30, before the federal government put it on the nearest Monday. Soden, agreeing with Illinois' decision to go it alone with the May 30 date, said the day is "for solemn remembrance, not for a three-day period of revelry," and said the VFW is also pushing to get Veterans' Day restored to Nov. 11.

• In honor of a fellow Missourian, Sen. Stuart Symington introduced legislation that would establish scholarships in the name of former President Harry S Truman. The four-year scholarships, to be financed with interest from $30 million in treasury funds, would be awarded annually to one student in each state and the District of Columbia to prepare them for government careers.

Search off for 1,100 MIAs

The search for 1,100 still-missing Americans lost during the Indo-China war came to a halt Thursday when North Vietnamese and Viet Cong representatives walked out of a meeting on the subject with the United States and South Vietnam. The halt brings to an end all formal contact between the four parties.

Trade 'code' agreement reached

Attempts to forestall a trade war between the leading nations of the non-Communist world has led to a "code of good behavior" agreement. Members of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development reached the agreement in Paris Thursday. The "code of behavior" now applies to most of the industrialized nations of the West and pledges each nation to avoid injurious trade measures.

Oil countries seek windfall profits

Another form of agreement was reached in Vienna where members of the largely Arab Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries met to discuss inflation caused oil price increases and a way to share in the windfall profits of Western oil companies.

Chicago schools 'misclassify minorities'

The Chicago school system has misclassified more than 5,000 minority group students as retarded because of cultural differences, according to the Illinois Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. A report from the committee said the students are put in special education classes for slow students "because of the insensitivity of Chicago schools to minority languages and cultures."

Stations low on gas

Only 14 per cent of the gas stations in Chicago and suburbs will be open this Sunday, about half as many as were open last Sunday, says the Chicago Motor Club. The club attributed the station closings to decreasing gas supplies at the end of the month and increased gas sales over the Memorial Day holidays.

The market

Market comes back, slightly

Trading was moderate Thursday but stock prices rebounded from Wednesday's sharp decline to post a gain on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 18.93 to a six-month low Wednesday, recovered 8.21 to 803.58 in a rally which began around 2 p.m. The advance was not broad and the trading was comparatively light, totaling 13,580,000 shares, compared to 12,300,000 Wednesday. Prices declined in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average Amex share declined 2 cents.

Inflation, shortages hurting schools

by WANDALYN RICE

Last June High School Dist. 214 contracted with Spinney Run Farms to buy 4 million half-pints of white and chocolate milk for the school year for slightly more than 6 cents each.

Shortly after school began last September, Dist. 214 got its first indication that economic conditions, including shortages and rapid inflation, was going to affect the way it and other school districts could do business in the future.

Spinney Run, faced with the same forces that have driven milk prices in the supermarket up by 18 cents a half-gallon during the past year, asked the district if it could increase its price.

THE DISTRICT refused to grant the price increase and held the milk company to its contract. However, in order to give the dairy some financial help, the schools began paying cash for the milk at the same time it was delivered.

"This year we definitely plan to have an escalator clause when we bid milk," Jack Brooks, Dist. 214 purchasing agent, says. "I have drawn up a clause to include in our bid specifications and I sent a copy to Spinney Run for their comment. I got back a very short note saying they didn't intend to get involved with school business again. I'm sure they've been losing money on every delivery they've made to us."

The escalator clause, which allows a supplier to raise prices as his costs increase, is one way some school districts are coping with inflation.

The problem with the escalator clause, as Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Business Mgr. Dan Suffoletto says, is that it makes it "very difficult" to choose the lowest bid. "A guy can be low today and then raise his prices so we lose money," Suffoletto says. "It makes it hard."

RISING PRICES is one part of the problem facing schools as they buy supplies for the coming year. The other problem is shortage — and this year, Brooks says, it looks like the larger districts are at a disadvantage on scarce items.

"On some things our size seems to work against us," Brooks says. "A lot of suppliers can't guarantee our supply."

Smaller districts with warehouses to store large quantities of supplies may be in better shape than Dist. 214 and other districts without warehouses.

Jean Meister, business manager of River Trails Dist. 26, says she has run into little trouble so far with supplies, but explains that suppliers can give her firm prices because "we have a warehouse and can take delivery on a year's supply at one time."

At Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Business Mgr. J. C. Busenhart found a way around a shortage of ditto fluid by purstead of gallon cans. He is now storing chasing 55-gallon drums of the fluid in-three drums in his warehouse and "we've give us a can before they can get ditto notified the schools that they have to fluid," he says.

PAPER IS ONE ITEM that all districts, both large and small, are worried about. The nationwide paper shortage has resulted in paper companies discontinuing production of inexpensive school-grade paper. As a result, school officials must buy more expensive bond paper to fill their needs — when that paper is available.

Dist. 214 recently received bids for its paper needs, Brooks says, and "we got one complete bid and two partial bids. We used to get 10 or 12 bidders without any trouble." The lowest price, Brooks says, is about twice what the schools paid last year.

Brooks is now considering whether to turn down the bids and try to buy smaller quantities of paper throughout the year on the open market. "We may be able to get it cheaper that way," he says, "but it's a gamble."

Toilet paper is also harder to get. Like fuel oil, Brooks says, suppliers have allocations of the product and, as a result, Dist. 214 is stuck with the same supplier it had last year regardless of price. "They are the only company that has our allocation," he says.

IN ADDITION TO problems of scarcity, Brooks and other business managers agree there are other factors which make it less attractive for suppliers to sell to schools during periods of high consumer demand.

Because of laws requiring competitive bidding, Brooks says, "It takes us longer than a normal company to buy something" and when demand is high from all sources, many businesses don't want to bother with bidding procedures.

In addition, he says, "schools are known to be slow-paying" because of the legal steps they must go through to pay bills. As interest rates on money rise, "it becomes less and less worthwhile for businesses to sell to us and have to wait to get paid," Brooks says.

Suffoletto says he has taken steps at Dist. 25 to speed up payment of bills to encourage suppliers. In addition, he says, Dist. 25 has sometimes offered to pay shipping costs on supplies to eliminate the profit margin businesses tack onto the shipping overhead.

ONE PROBLEM that Brooks says he can foresee if present conditions become long-term problems is that "the bidding system will be undermined." Eventually, he says, schools may face the problem of collusion among bidders and even higher prices as suppliers take advantage of the shortage.

He says, however, that he has seen no evidence of this problem developing yet. "I think most people still believe this is a temporary thing and they don't want to burn any bridges behind them, but if this lasts for a while we might find ourselves with suppliers saying, 'This is the price, take it or leave it,' " he says.

Prospects for profitable year bright

Arlington Park set to begin 84-day season Monday

Arlington Park Race Track opens its 84-day season Monday with track officials riding high hopes for one of the most successful summers in five years.

Their outlook is buoyed by three months of choice racing dates, full stables and a 7 to 10 per cent increase in betting and attendance at Sportsman's Park, which opened Chicago's thoroughbred racing circuit this spring.

Improvements have been made to the track's backstretch stable area.

During the off-season, all barns and dormitories, including the new fireproof concrete barns, were painted white with green trim. Now, full-grown fir and maple trees were planted during the winter. Comfort stations for stable area employes were renovated and several new facilities are under construction.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS environmental health officer Daniel Tarry has made two recent inspections of the backstretch, in accord with a housing agreement reached this winter between village and race track officials. Additional inspections are planned.

Racing fans may be encouraged by the fact that admission prices at Arlington Park will remain the same as last year, a new electronic tote board has been erected to broadcast race results, and no major reconstruction work is planned along either the Northwest Tollway or Ill. Rte. 53.

Several promotional events are planned during the summer, according to Arlington Park spokesman Tom Rivera.

On the Fourth of July, the track's grassy infield will be open to picnickers. The infield was thrown open to the public for the first time last year for the appearance of Triple Crown winner Secretariat.

AS A BAKCDROP to this summer's racing season, Arlington Park officials are expected to present their master plan for development of land around the oval track.

The track's five-year-old annexation agreement with the Village of Arlington Heights expires Oct. 20, and with it the special building provisions guaranteed in the agreement.

The Richards Group of Illinois, an Oak Brook development firm and a subsidiary of Arlington Park's parent company, Madison Square Garden Corp., has been retained to do the development planning.

A concentration of apartment and condominium housing is expected in the area between the Arlington Park Towers Hotel and the race track.

ADDITIONAL LAND for development at the 413-acre site will be opened up with the demolition of the 19 remaining wooden barns at the track.

Arlington Park's president Jack Loome has agreed to replace all the wooden structures with larger, fireproof concrete stables over the next five years.

The reconstruction schedule will depend on the race track's profits, Loome said.

Last November, Loome told the Illinois Racing Board, during hearings on 1974 racing dates, that Arlington Park's net profit had dropped from $2.3 million in 1969, to $357,000 in 1973.

"For the first time, we seriously question, from a business viewpoint, whether we can continue to operate our racing facilities," he told the board.

"Despite these setbacks, we have every intention of operating in 1974. But we would emphasize that, along with our responsibilities to the state and the racing industry, we have responsibilities to our stockholders. They deserve a fair return on equity, which they did not receive in 1972 and 1973."

LOOME'S COMMENTS throw an additional spotlight on this summer's racing season.

With a major development plan to be unfolded soon, and what would appear to be the track's best shot at a good season in recent years at hand, more than jockeys will be riding at Arlington Park this summer.

The future of a race track, which for 47 years has been known numbered among the top in the country, also may come down to the wire.

Residents robbed at gunpoint

Two men, one armed with a pistol, escaped with $26 in cash and credit cards early yesterday after entering a Des Plaines home and holding up three men.

According to police reports, the robbery occurred when one of the victims, Tony Halinowski, 25, of 1723 Touhy Ave., answered his doorbell about 1:10 a.m. and was confronted by the holdup men, one of whom pointed a gun at him.

Halinowski told police he was ordered to lie down on the floor of the living room and made to crawl to a stairway to summon his two companions from upstairs when the gunmen reportedly asked him if anyone else was in the house.

The robbers also pulled out the house's telephone wires while inside, according to police accounts.

They then demanded the wallets belonging to Halinwoski, and his two companions, Daniel Dunn, 20, also of the address and Edward Kramer, 25, of 7520 Seeley, in Chicago.

The bandits then fled in an unknown direction.

The gunman was described to police at 5 feet 8 inches tall, with a medium build, light hair and wearing a blue jean jacket. No description was given to police of the second man.

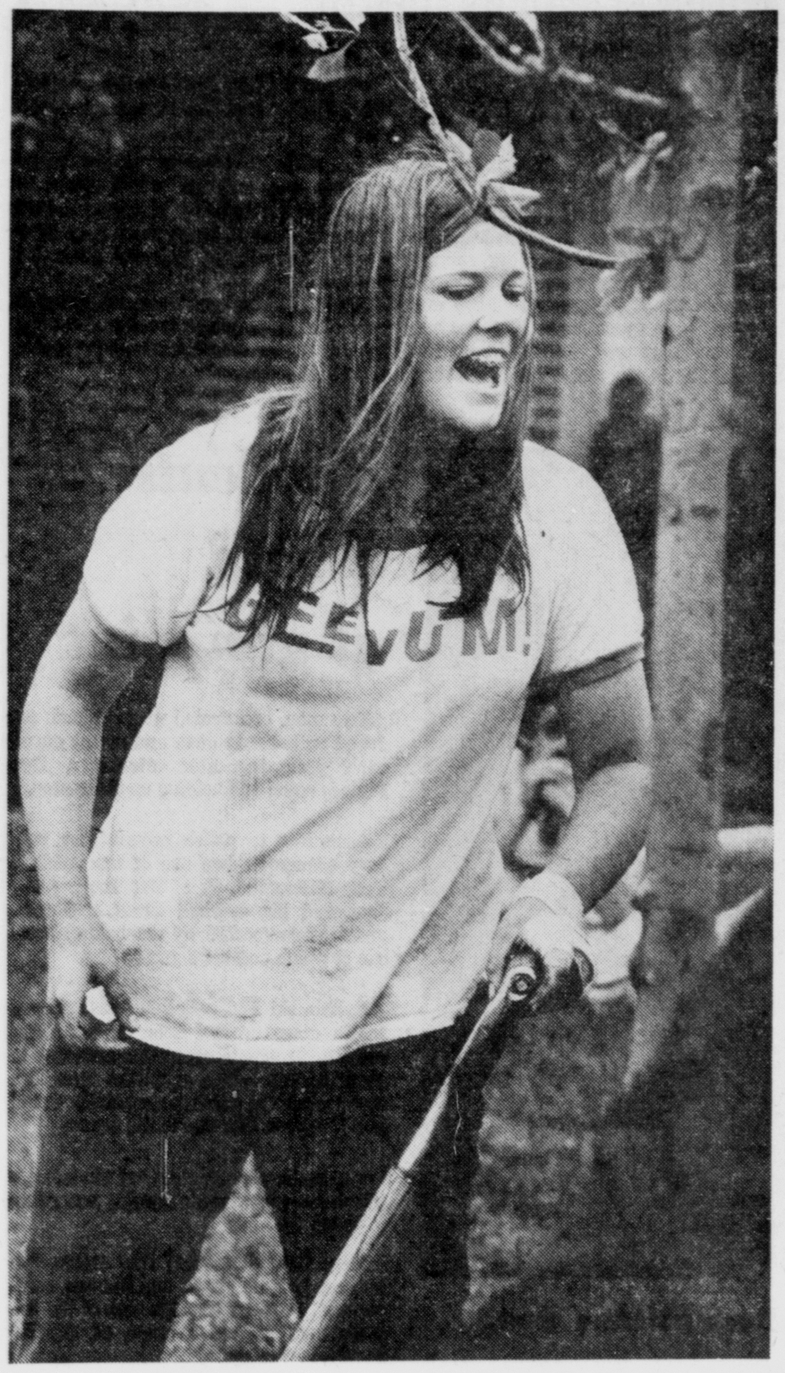
Hersey High holds 'grass day'



Hersey High School students planted trees and did landscaping this week around the new retention basin that has been built on the school grounds.

The project was called "grass day" at the school. The retention basin has been put on the schoolgrounds to control flooding, which has affected surrounding homes.

Jeff breaks the sex barrier... in cheerleading

Breaking the sex barrier was easy for Jeff Charles. All he did was lift a pert cheerleader over his head.

Jeff decided he wanted to do something different this year so instead of trying out for the basketball team at Palatine High School he tried out for cheerleadisg and made the squad.

Palatine High School now has the only male cheerleader in the Northwest suburbs and Jeff sneers at anyone who dares call him a sissy.

"Everybody thought I was really goofing around. Up until the last minute I think a lot of people thought I was doing it for a joke or a bet."

BUT ANYONE WHO talks to Jeff now knows he's serious. He practiced every day after school for a month, got some special help from the gymnastics coach at Palatine and went through with the try-outs on May 3 and 4. Now the 6-foot 1-inch, 160-pound junior will be cheering along with eight girls next year on the varsity basketball and football squad.

"I thought if I went out for varsity basketball I would be like everybody else," says Jeff, so he stuck with cheerleading. "I didn't do it to show that a guy could break into a girls activity. I did it just because I thought it would be fun," he says.

"I've chewed everybody out so far that's criticized me," says Jeff. "One of the things I hope to do is break the ice." Jeff now feels sure another boy will try out for the squad next year.

Jeff says most of the people he knows have accepted the fact that he's a cheerleader and many have been encouraging him, particularly teachers and other cheerleaders "At first I thought the squad would resent it by saying, 'He made it because he's the only guy,' but it hasn't worked out that way at all," says Jeff.

"I think it's good. We wouldn't be able to do half the new routines we do without him," says Kyle Mangles, one of the girls on the squad.

"It's going to be a lot different from last year," says Colleen McGivney. "We have to be more discreet," she says. All thing considered Colleen is glad Jeff is on the squad. "I think it's really good," she says. "At least we'll be known."

ONE OF THE squad's coaches, teacher Denise Trethaway says the girls felt slightly ill at ease with Jeff at first but they've accepted him now and they even give him special help learning the cheers.

Jeff doesn't do all the cheers, says Mrs. Trethaway, because some "are typically girl cheers," which she describes as "bouncy." But she says Jeff doesn't mind sitting on the side lines now and then.

Jeff was not recruited for the squad, says Mrs. Trethaway. "We didn't encourage him more than anyone else," she says but she is glad he tried out. "We would like to have had three or four other guys but no one was interested. I guess they're scared."

After three weeks of practice as a squad the cheerleaders work well together and they're confident that next year will be one of their best years.

Jeff gets along well with the rest of the squad, says Mrs. Trethaway. "I don't think very many guys could do as well as he does," she says. "He has to accept criticism from the girls. He's such an even-tempered person. He doesn't get aggravated easily. He has to be or he wouldn't be able to get along with eight girls."

Crank call warning

No one from Harper College is making a telephone survey for the school's fashion design program, college officials say.

Recently, a man identifying himself as a surveyor for the fashion design program has been making crank calls to Northwest suburban women, according to college officials. His questioning becomes increasingly personal as the "survey" proceeds.

College officials say the college does sometimes conduct telephone surveys of alumni, but that proper identification is always given. There is no fashion design survey.

Tickets for the play are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children and may be reserved by calling 729-1760 or purchased at the door.

Congressional wrapup

House approves legal-aid bill

From Roll Call Report

Following is a summary of the key votes by the Illinois congressional delegation for the period from May 16 through May 22.

Included in the summary are the votes of Illinois' two senators, Republican Charles H. Percy and Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson, and Northwest suburban congressmen Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

House

LEGAL SERVICES CORP: Conference report to establish a Legal Services Corp. to provide free legal services to the poor, passed 227-143.

The measure awaits Senate action. It would create a presidentially-appointed board to administer the program, and place strong restrictions on the activities of legal service lawyers.

Among the restrictions are:

- No political activites, including voter-registration drives, while on government time.
- No lobbying of federal, State and local governments, except when representing a client.
- No participation in public school desegragation cases.
- No representation of women seeking non-therapeutic abortions.

Supporters argued that the measure advances the concept of equal protection under the law by granting poor persons access to quality lawyers.

Opponents argued that free legal services to one class of citizens discriminate against middle class persons who must pay for their lawyers. Other opponents argued that the measure's restrictions were too soft on such activities as lobbying.

Crane ..... No
Young ..... Yes

Others: Ralph Metcalfe, D-1st; Morgan Murphy, D-2nd; John Kluczynski, D-5th; Cardiss Collins, D-7th; Dan Rostenkowski, D-8th; Robert McClory, R-13th; John Erlenborn, R-14th; John Anderson, R-16th; George O'Brien, R-17th; Thomas Railsback, R-19th; Edward Madigan, R-21st; Melvin Price, D-23rd, and Kenneth Gray, D-24th, voted yes.

Robert Hanrahan, R-3rd; Edward Derwinski, R-4th; Frank Annunzio, D-11th; Leslie Arends, R-15th; Robert Michel, R-18th, and George Shipley, D-22nd, voted no.

Harold Collier, R-6th; Sidney Yates, D-9th, and Paul Findley, R-20th, did not vote.

OVERSEAS INVESTMENTS: A bill to continue the Overseas Private Investment Corp., a federal agency that guarantees insurance to American corporations that invest abroad, passed 225-152.

The bill now goes to conference with the Senate. It would extend OIPC's life to December, 1977.

OPIC provides insurance against war, rebellion and expropriation in foreign lands. OPIC gets its money from premiums paid by corporations, although if all corporations presently insured were to lose their investments, the federal treasury would be liable for up to $600 million.

Supporters argued that helping overseas investments helps the nation's balance-of-payments posture and spurs economic development in poor countries.

Opponents argued that OPIC encourages multi-national corporations to build new plants overseas — where labor costs are low — instead of building plants at home where jobs are needed.

Crane ..... No
Young ..... Yes

Law for today...

Landlord must be given notice

If I want to rent an apartment to someone else, how much notice must I give my present tenant?

This depends upon the terms of the present tenancy. To terminate week-to-week tenancy requires a seven days' notice; a month-to-month tenancy requires 30 days' notice; a lease of one year or more usually requires at least 60 days' notice. Remember, in all cases a notice to terminate must be in writing and must be received by the tenant prior to the beginning of the next rent period.

Can you legally have a certain amount of marijuana in your home?

No. Illinois law specifically states that it is unlawful for any person knowingly to possess marijuana.

Since my divorce I have taken a part-time job in addition to my full-time job. Will this automatically require me to increase my child support payments?

No Your former wife would have to petition the Court to obtain a change in the amount of support payments you make from your overall income. The original support order that was made by the court cannot be altered unless there is cause to do so.

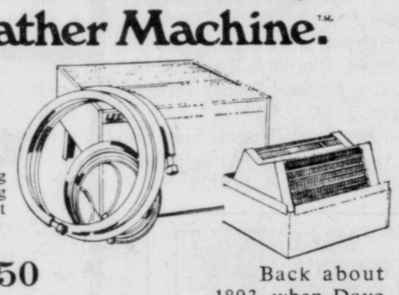
Make a cool addition to your forced air system. The Lennox Nifty Weather Machine.™



For 18,000 Btuh outdoor condensing unit, indoor cooling coil and refrigerant lines. Installation extra.

$358.50

Back about 1893, when Dave Lennox made his first furnace, relief from summer heat was a hunk of ice and a patch of shade.

There have been some changes made. Now you'll find the Lennox name on nifty weather machines that cool and clean the air and control moisture in homes and buildings. And these weather machines are designed so that even if you aren't lucky enough to have a Lennox furnace, you can still add Lennox central air conditioning, air cleaning and moisture control to nearly any forced air system.

That's a relief, for sure. Get out from under the weather with a Lennox nifty weather machine.

Heart murmur needs treatment

I have had a heart murmur at least 16 years. Four years ago I developed cardiac insufficiency. The left side of my heart is much weaker than the right side. The heartbeat is soft and around 100 times a minute. If I get extremely tired, it will go up to 140 for a time.

The murmur is growing steadily worse. I'm having chest pain frequently and my left arm hurts. Will a fast heart rate lessen the life span? Does the heart ever strengthen after cardiac insufficiency? I'm past 50. Is surgery indicated?

Cardiac insufficiency means heart failure. Doctors use this term to mean the heart muscle is weak or not able to contract hard enough to pump blood in the most efficient manner. Failure or weakening of the heart muscle can affect either the left side of the heart (the most common problem) or the right side and eventually both the right and left side of the heart.

Failure of the left side causes shortness of breath from the accumulation of fluid in the lungs. Failure of the right side causes swelling of the liver, abdomen, feet and ankles. There are many causes for failure of the heart. A bad valve from old rheumatic heart disease can be one cause. It can also result from overloading the heart muscle. Stress from high blood pressure and the fatty deposits in the arteries to the heart muscle are common guilty factors.

It is important to know just what causes heart failure in order to treat it properly. If the problem is a damaged heart valve then in many instances heart surgery with valve replacement is a good idea.

If heart failure is caused by disease in the arteries to the heart there is relatively little that can be offered surgically to treat the patient.

MEDICAL TREATMENT can do a lot to help strengthen the heart. Digitalis and related medicines are first and most important. Many people who have had heart failure can return to normal living patterns by taking these medicines. This, however, doesn't mean that you shouldn't have surgery if you have a condition that warrants it. Eventually the problems from bad valves can't be managed by medicines alone, and there often comes a time when surgery is needed and advisable, provided the patient's over-all condition can tolerate it.

The fast heart rate you have is common in the presence of heart failure. It sometimes slows as the problem is corrected. The murmur can be either from a bad valve or caused by the dilation of the heart from the weakened heart muscle.

I think you ought to find out why you have heart failure. Ask your doctor if you have a valve that should be operated upon, or what the problem really is. I'm sure you should be on medicine at least to help control the problem, and perhaps you are. But, you need to know this and what the medicines are.

Attention turning to training programs

Business today

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK—The training department is fast becoming one of the most important "profit centers" in any sizable company, says Charles E. Miller, president of Internationol Correspondence School of Scranton, Pa.

ICS still is known to the public primarily for home study courses to which 8 million persons have subscribed in 84 years — including such notables as Walter P. Chrysler, Robert G. LeTourneau, Stuart Symington, Eddie Rickenbacker, Luther Hodges, Arthur Godfrey and Charles E. Wilson of General Electric.

MILLER SAYS THAT, in the past decade, ICS has expanded its corporate industrial training service, started in a modest way in 1908, until it now comprises 40 per cent of the company's business. He says it probably will account for more than half of its business in a few years. The industrial training division got a lift during World War II when the armed forces used its services to train millions of soldiers and sailors.

Customers of the division include nine of the top 10 and 73 of the first 100 companies in Fortune's list of the nation's 500 biggest industrial concerns.

"Profit center" is a term management consultants and graduate business school professors are fond of using to describe activities that produce the biggest return for the effort.

MILLER CITED the Soo Line R.R. as a dramatic example of how the training department can become a profit center. A few years ago the Soo Line, like many railroads "hired by the grapevine" and promoted in defiance of "the Peter Principle," which says most people sooner or later reach a level of competence beyond which they cannot advance. The Soo Line had no training programs and few college graduates in its whole family.

Within a few years after putting in an ICS training program, the Soo Line reached the point in 1973 where its revenues were up 2,000 per cent over a decade and it was earning 7.6 per cent on capital against a national average for railroads and trucking lines of 4.9 per cent. Miller hastened to say ICS doesn't claim credit for all of this.

"Manpower is the most expensive commodity for any company if it is misused," he said. A good training department becomes a profit center because it eliminates the need to hire people away from competitors at premium salaries. A corollary of this, Miller said, is that a company that cuts its training budget when business gets tough is acting like the seaman who mistakenly tossed something non-floatable to a drowning man instead of a life-preserver.

Housing starts in Chicago area still on downward trend

Housing construction in the Chicago metropolitan area continued a downward slide last monrh.

Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Chicago reports is its six-county survey of New Building this week that all housing construction, including homes and apartments, dropped 52 per cent during April compared to figures a year earlier. Total housing units reached 2,175 in April — a decrease from the April, 1973, total of 4,258 units.

Single-family units declined 12 per cent (1,728 to 1,522) and multiple permits decreased 74 per cent (2,530 to 653.).

For the second consecutive month, the sharpest decline was noted in apartment activity in the City of Chicago, which dropped from 893 units in April, 1973 to only 18 units last month.

The combined total of permits issued for single-family and apartments in the first four months of 1974 were 48 per cent lower than figures reported for the same period last year, reaching only 7,953 compared to 15,346 in 1973.

Mount Prospect is the leading community in the Chicago metropolitan area in terms of new housing permits issued in the first four months of the year. Permits for 31 homes and 1,030 apartment units have been issued in the municipality. Among other leaders: Schaumburg issued 117 home permits and 142 apartment permits, and Des Plaines issued 20 home permits and 148 multi-family unit permits.

Des Plaines bank installs new computer system

The First National Bank of Des Plaines recently installed a new third generation Burroughs B-2540 computer system.

Bruce Phillips, vice president and data processing manager, said the new system will enable the bank to provide faster, more accurate handling of accounts and all aspects of its banking services.

Another feature of First National's new computer is its on-line capability. This will enable the bank to install terminals at each personal teller's window to speed account handling by allowing tellers to talk directly to the computer.

The system operates under a Master Control that enables the computer to run as many as 80 different programs concurrently, compared to only one program for the old system. The Burroughs B-2540 system consists of a Central Processing Unit with three disc file modules capable of 30-million - character storage capacity. The old system was limited to 4-million character storage. Card reader of the new system handles 800 cards per minute, which is twice as much as the old reader. The new line printer handles 850 lines per minute compared to only 600 for the old unit. Capacity of the new card punch is 300 cards a minute.

Mustaches don't bug us

Another chapter in the never-ending battle between authority and hair was written last week, when an Elk Grove Village fireman named Craig Rennack was suspended for five days for wearing a mustache to work.

The issue, as explained then by fire officials, was that mustaches, long hair and other hirsute adornment, might interfere with the smoke masks which firemen must don on occasion.

But there's more to this matter, for department policy on mustaches varies across the suburbs. In Wheeling, for example, Chief Bernard Koeppen reports that 13 of his 17 men wear the soup-strainers. He won't allow the longer handlebar mustache, and hair should be

"halfway trimmed," he says.

At issue in the mustache dispute could be department discipline — Fire Chief Allen Hulett's ability to keep order in the ranks — and that issue is older than any of the hairy firemen in the Northwest suburbs.

In past years, the discipline dispute centered in our public schools, where an ongoing controversy about what boys and girls should wear kept school officials preoccupied with enforcement of dress codes.

In later years, those codes were declared unconstitutional by the courts, and the discipline argument of long hair and blue jeans has been buried. Behavior today is no worse, we believe.

Firemen and policemen, however, are public officials, and they must relate to the public on a day-to-day basis. If discipline isn't the issue, then "public image" could be the problem which concerns fire officials.

Let it not be said that The Herald is arguing for the slovenly, unkempt look. Far from it. We're just as concerned as you are about cleanliness and a neat appearance.

But there's nothing unfashionable or unpleasant today about a well-trimmed mustache. In fact, firemen of past eras have worn long mustaches, and although today firemen often wear face masks, we don't find mustaches to be either unappealing or a threat to a man's fire-fighting duties.

The entire matter became a non-issue early this week, when fireman Rennack came back to work and the department agreed to reconsider the regulations which ban mustaches. This is a sensible step by the department — and we don't believe it'll have any effect on the fire-fighting ability of an excellent fire department.

'Not applicable' shields pols

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Metropolitan Affairs Editor

Nothing is tougher than the life of a politician.

The power, the money and the rewards of public service can never offset the hours of indigestion following political dinners, the years wasted in boring government meetings and the numerous telephone calls from irate citizens.

The pol lives a hard life, often bouncing between three or four jobs, attempting to dodge grand juries and newspaper scandals and weighing decisions to gain maximum voter support.

Once, and only once, a year can the pol cause discomfort among the press. Subtle as it is, that time is now and the place is a back room in County Clerk Stanley Kusper's fourth-floor County Building headquarters.

By following the handwritten signs, reporters annually troop to that backroom and begin a ritual of examining ethics statements filed by the politicians. The search is pure needle-in-a-haystack.

Rarely do the reporters find anything. The ethics statements are as worthless as blank paper in 99 out of 100 cases.

The pol spends about 30 seconds answering "N/A" (not applicable) to the eight ethics questions and signing the bottom-back statement that the non-answers are true.

The reporter spends hours filling out request forms to examine the ethics forms. Each request requires printing of the reporter's name once and signing twice, listing of occupation, business address and telephone number and a "reason" for examining the "economic interest" statement.

For the pol with nothing else to do, the ethics game must be like fishing along a quiet stream. First, the pol tosses out the bait — another "N/A" ethics form. Then, the pol snoozes at stream-side until a nibble indicates that someone examined his ethics statement. The law requires that persons who file the form receive notification when his or her statement is examined.

The ethics law keeps four persons employed in Kusper's office. A row of locked file cabinets protects the ethics forms. Another cabinet row, with smaller locks, houses zeroxed copies of the forms which taxpayers and reporters examine.

Anyone who spends a few hours examining the forms can ses holes in the law. Nowhere is the pol required to list his employer, unless the firm falls within rigid, nearly nonexclusive guidelines. Nowhere is the pol required to list home or business address, income or assets.

The forms reveal so little that examination of more than 100 filed by local officials turned up only one startling fact — that one village official received $500 gift from a local corporation in 1973. Exact amount of the gift was not listed. The name of the firm was handwritten, nearly illegible and misspelled.

Attorneys listed their law firms as professional organizations from which $1,200 or more income was derived, but clients were not named. Teachers on municipal boards listed their school districts as "government employers."

The newest trend in filing of the forms allows pols in hot water to clean publicly their closet without loss of grace. Long-winded politicians who are notoriously short in answering the ethics statements are using the forms to separate themselves from questionable business associations — after the fact.

More than two years ago metropolitan newspapers revealed that four county board members owned stock in Chicago banks that held non-interest county funds.

A state's attorney's investigation found that the four were "not prosecutable under the law." One of the board members, Comr. Floyd Fulle, sold his stock before the Better Government Assn. investigation began. Since the probe, the three other board members, President George Dunne, Comr. John Stroger and Charles Bonk, have dutifully listed sale of their bank stock on the ethics statements.

The ethics form is so specific in its questions and so open in its loopholes that the devoted politician can list solid "not applicables" without effort or imagination. Some pols quietly sit back, play the game and collect the examination request forms without a whimper. Others call the examining reporter and ask if "you found enough" in their informationless statements.

Full disclosure by candidates and officer holders may be desirable. But, even a more conservative approach might be acceptable in a state that heaped praise on itself for leading the nation in passage of ethics legislation.

Until the ethics law is reformed, the last laugh will be with the small percentage of public office holders who use their office for personal gain and file yearly "not applicable" statements.

Dog a trespass victim

Fence post
letters to the editor

We would like to express our gratitude to the good people at 416 S. Plum Grove Road who were so kind and concerned when our Scottie, Angus, was killed in front of their home Sunday evening, May 19. Also to the driver of the car who was thoughtful enough to stop and try to get help. It means a lot to know he didn't die alone.

These people located us from his tags and not only phoned us, but tried to locate a vet and notified the police.

Officer Howard Wurster from the Palatine police responded promptly and did all he could to help, finally bringing Angus' body home to us. He helped our daughter locate us and stayed with her until we arrived. She said he was so concerned and tried to make her feel less upset. Since she is blind, she could not see both the gates to our yard had been opened by someone during our absence. He stayed and talked to us and was sympathetic and helpful about making final arrangements for Angus.

These people phoned again. How kind people can be, and we appreciate it deeply.

We do not feel the same, however, towards whoever it was who felt free to trespass into our yard, probably to get a ball gone over the fence. This involved opening two heavy six-foot stockade gates, one into a side yard and the next into the backyard and then leaving without the good manners (or sense) to even close the gates. Surely they could have rung the bell and asked for what they wanted.

Angus may have been "just a dog," but he was a part of our family. These same trespassers may leave a gate open some day that will let a child out to be injured or killed.

We tried hard to protect our dogs (and to keep them from bothering the neighbors), but I guess no one has any protection against thoughtlessness. Whatever happened to teaching children to respect private property?

We do thank heaven, though, for people like those who took their time to help. It eases our loss a little.

Firemen lauded

I would like to compliment Rolling Meadows on its fine fire department and to thank the firemen and paramedics who helped us.

April 29 my 2-year-old son and I were injured in a traffic accident on Hicks Road. The firemen were really wonderful, working with swift efficiency and gentleness.

The reassurance they gave me was just the booster I needed and I would like to say I think they're really terrific.

I would like to give special thanks to a man whose name I don't know. This fireman took my little boy in his own two arms from the time he arrived at the scene of the accident, held my son in the ambulance and even held him in the emergency room at the hospital, talking to my son and giving him constant reassurance. Thank you so very much.

'Decisive' holidays

The house divided against itself.

No, Junior, there will not be a Memorial Day parade this year.

Some very important people couldn't decide whether or not it should be on the 27th or the 30th. Now, eat your dinner so you grow up to be a big, important, decisive man.

Burp!

Legislators should baby-sit

Most of the business community will celebrate Memorial Day on the 27th of May. This is done as an isolated work day is very inefficient and the employes appreciate a three-day weekend for the first warm weather holiday. Their employes will have a break in the usual routine, families will picnic together and after the weekend employe efficiency will soar.

Well not quite. This year our legislators say that our educators must keep the children in school on their parents' holiday, and at the same time the children will be home on May 30 while the parents are at work.

Sir, both I and my children request that you publish the names of legislators that have been elected by our community and supported a law that favors separate holiday for children and parents.

Come to think of it, being home with Mom and no children may not be so bad, but on the 30th please send over a legislator to baby-sit.

Bruce Biossat's column

'Leavetaking from an era'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Bruce Biossat, who died Monday at the age of 64, was a native Chicagoan as well as the chief correspondent for the NEA in Washington, D.C. Today we print a Biossat column, written two years ago, which reflects on his life in Chicago.

by BRUCE BIOSSAT

CHICAGO — It's the moving season, and moving can be a chore. For me, helping here to close a family home held more than half a century, it is not so much a labor as a painful leavetaking from an era of warm, bright living.

The era slips away as books acquired in the early 1900s are pulled from the shelves, as letters from 1890 are found in dresser drawers, as hundreds of photographs tumble out of envelopes, as I find the ticket stub from my first football game ages ago, and my father's grades on a scholarship test, and my mother's notes about the night we came to this house in October, 1919.

We are tearing all these things from their accustomed places, and packing up, because my mother died a little while ago. She was 89 and had outlived my father by 21 years.

As we thrust the past into paperboard boxes, as we plant shipping labels on sofas and chairs and tables we know as we do our own faces, what are we leaving?

First, a huge brick house with a red-tiled roof, a handsome bay window, broad, high-ceilinged rooms, a spacious yard more richly green by far than when we came 53 years ago.

It is truly a family fortress, a great rock unscarred by the battering tides of recent times. It is the visible proof that we had a stable setting in which to grow and get ready for the world.

I look at a corner of the oak-paneled dining room and remember that for 52 unbroken years enormous Christmas trees stood there, loaded down with hundreds and hundreds of ornaments.

The tree, lasting sometimes for six weeks, was the centerpiece in a long ceremony which was, for us, an annual celebration of life. Relatives, neighbors and friends trooped in to gaze at it.

We in this large family who returned year after year to sustain this ceremony with our fullest energies could be charged, I suppose, with trying to reclaim the past, with taking refuge in the old citadel safe from the chaos of this age.

True, perhaps, in a measure. But here the past was also the present. We never allowed the skein to be broken. We came not because it was safe but because life here was still warm and good.

Looking at the long dining room table, I can call up memories easily, of my father, a hard-charging lawyer, teasing my sisters, of my sensitive mother trying to balance half a dozen diets and keep a show of order amid the banter and laughter.

Not just at Christmas but at birthdays and other special times, that table was a festive thing to see — brightened by flowers, well-appointed with distinctive coffee urns and other table pieces, laden with food.

What went on here at such times was not lavish. It was just great good fun, which few who came ever forgot.

I'm sitting now in my father's upstairs study, where built-in shelves once held hundreds of law books. On the floor, ready to be moved, are many piles of old 78 RPM phonograph records — reminders of the nearly continuous jazz festivals that enlivened the place in earlier times.

This house was not just the family rock; it was for long years a gathering place for young and old, attracted by its warmth, its gaiety, its curious, free-style originality. It was a center for songfest and talkfest, a place where living never was dull.

This stage, where our lives unfolded in cheerful competition and zestful celebration, will soon be dark. Its era is really over now. The loss is not just ours, but the world's.

MILITARY SPENDING. An amendment to limit fiscal 1975 military procurement authorizations to last year's ceiling, plus 7.5 per cent for inflation rejected 209-185.

The amendment would have sliced $733 million from the $22.6 billion authorization bill.

The over-all bill was later passed and sent to the Senate. It calls for funding weapons purchases and development of new weapons, such as B-1 bombers and Trident nuclear submarines.

Supporters argued that the country needs to tighten its belt to combat inflation.

Apponents argued that the cuts would weakin the nation's defenses.

AMATEUR ATHLETICS: Motion to reconsider a previous voice vote on which the Senate had passed a bill to establish a federal amateur athletics agency, passed 56-29.

The parliamentary effect of the vote to reconsider was to force sponsors of the bill to temporarily shelve the measure, rather than risk a defeat on a record vote.

The bill's intent was to patch up differences between the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) and the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (NCAA), which have forced some athletes to forego certain competitions or risk blacklisting by one of the groups.

The bill also would have established a permanent federal agency to oversee and promote amateur athletics, at a maximum per-year cost of $50 million to the U.S. Treasury.

Supporters of the move to reconsider, and thus shelve the bill, argued that amateur athletics are outside the control of the federal government, and viewed the bill's price tag as too high.

Opponents argued that a federal agency is needed to end the feud between the AAU and the NCAA.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Expert defense sets contract

Reese and Dormer point out that in the ordinary bridge game West's queen of clubs would hold the first trick. He would continue the suit whereupon South would take his ace and wind up with eight or nine tricks, depending on whether or not he elected to ruff the third club with dummy's six or nine.

This wouldn't happen in an expert game. West's queen of clubs would still hold that first trick, but West would stop for a short period of thought.

He would decide first that East did not hold the ace-king of clubs. With both those cards he would win the first trick in order to lead a trump. Therefore, South was marked with the ace of clubs.

How about the ace and queen of spades? South might have both those cards also but it wouldn't be likely. With ace-queen, ace and a long suit South would almost surely have made some more enterprising bid than a mere two spades.

After all that thought West would plunk the king of spades on the table at trick two and continue the suit. The defense would collect two trumps, three clubs, one diamond and 100 points above the line.

MOLDING A FIGURE from soft white clay is the first step Mrs. Jane Anderson, of Hoffman Estates, uses in her art. The crafty characters come to life after baking, painting and backgrounding.

Whimsy in clay and wood

She calls it kitchen art

Medley

by KAREN THOMPSON

They make you jiggle all over with laughter. They're whimsical little characters — tall birds in tennis shoes, clowns with Clarabelle-style locks and frogs with long protruding red tongues — all made of clay.

Jane Anderson is an artist with boundless imagination whose works are universally lovable. They pinch the often forgotten bit of childlike imagination in everybody. She labels her craft "kids and kitchen art, because it's basically juvenile."

A nature lover, Jane's been heavily influenced in her crafts by her growing-up years spent on a farm in the south. "I make bugs, worms, frogs and turtles, all the things that fascinated me as a child," she said.

It all started when Jane traveled with her aunt to summer school at the University of Florida. "She got me started because she let me mess and I've been piddling around with various art forms ever since," Mrs. Anderson said.

A FORMER commercial artist, Jane also excels in oil painting. "But with the arrival of our first baby, I put my oils away. They're not something you leave lying around for a child to get into," she said.

At the same time, Jane was searching for decorations for the nursery, finding nothing that suited her fancy. She decided to make them herself and has been working with clay and wood ever since.

"To me it was just a hobby, but it mushroomed into a business along the way. I do pieces for my friends, other people see them and put in orders."

"I do a bit of everything so it's hard to say what my specialty is," said Jane pointing to a full wall of trinkets in her workroom. "I just sit down and think of what I want to do and then make it."

HER MEDIUM IS a soft white clay called Sculpy. After fashioning a desired object, she bakes it in the oven for 15 to 30 minutes, depending on the thickness, at 250 to 300 degrees. It is then left to set for about 24 hours so that the moisture evaporates; then it is painted with acrylics.

"I use no special tools, just an Exacto knife, toothpicks, cake decorating tips — a variety of amateurish utensils I find around the house," said Jane.

She uses old wood, transported back from Georgia and Kentucky and driftwood from Wisconsin for the backgrounds.

Jane exhibits at craft shows throughout the area. Her booth is an eyecatcher. "I enjoy taking my crafts to art fairs. I like to watch the reactions of people as they walk by. They crack up. Everyone finds something that hits their funny bone," she said.

Where does she get her ideas? From her children — "My two boys often run up to me and say, 'Mommy, you haven't done a Winnie the Pooh yet.' " Or other people — "Friends say have you ever done . . . or, will you do . . . so I try it. Sometimes it works out, sometimes it doesn't," said Mrs. Anderson, who also makes corn husk dolls and ecology boxes.

"SOME OF MY BEST pieces I don't do anymore. After making a certain object a few times, I get tired of it. I hate repetition," she said. And there's little repeat in her work. Her imagination runs rampant with new ideas, the most recent of which are zany long-legged figures given as gag prizes at a ski club banquet.

"This hobby is a release for me. If the kids get on my nerves, I just hole up in my workroom and delve into a ball of clay," said the mother of Brannen, 5, and Steven, 7.

On the other hand, her hobby has become a family pastime. "Sometimes when I settle down to work, the kids come in, so I just hand them a chunk of clay and we all work together," she said.

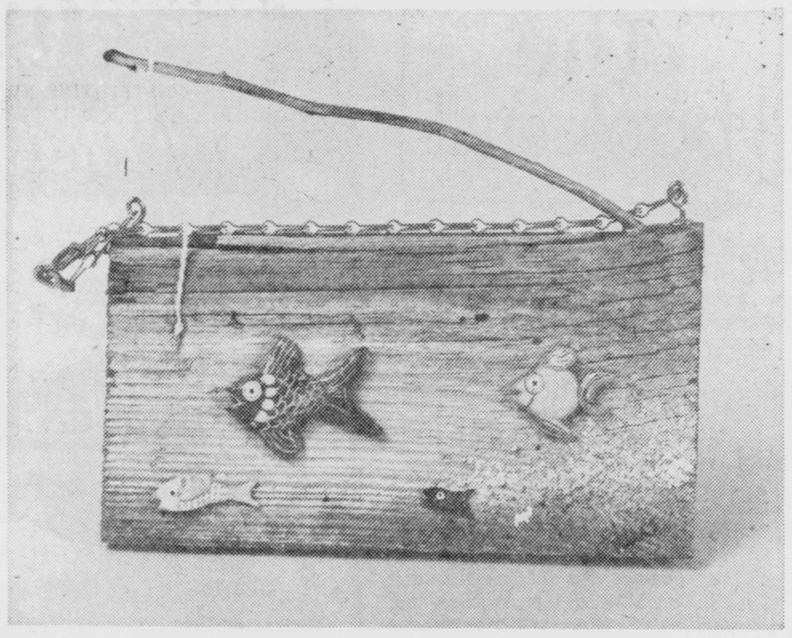
Her youngest was proud as a peacock about the worm and snake collection that he fashioned himself. Even her husband gets into the art. He learned the craft and taught it to the 'Y' Indian Guides at a recent meeting. "I think the fathers had as good a time as the boys," said Mrs. Anderson.

On the side, because "I don't have anything else to do," Jane said with a chuckle, she puts out a newsletter for the Four Winds Ski Club and does posters for a variety of local clubs. She also gives demonstrations at women's club meetings in the area.

"PEOPLE ASK ME, 'Don't you hate to give your ideas away?' when I teach at clubs. But I feel that everything is original. No two people conceive a figure the same way. People don't realize how simple this craft is, and I enjoy sharing it with others," said Jane.

In her workroom, painted bright yellow and green, is a wall of creations galore. It's hard to know where to look first. There's Bimbo the elephant with a bird nested between his ears. There's a mouse on skis. There's a Think Snow model — the backend of a skier with his head stuck in a snowdrift. And there's Jonathan Livingston Seagull, swooping down from nowhere.

They all reflect a bit of their creator — a lady with an untainted, boundless imagination.



NATURE AND FUN play an important part in what Jane calls "kids and kitchen art." Although relatively simple, some of her pieces, such as Clarabelle Clown and Mike Mouse, are intricately put together in sections.

No place left in world for master stone carver

by TOM TIEDE
(First in a series)

When he was a young man in Italy, learning his trade, stone carver Roger Morigi energetically, but oafishly, chipped a lily from an unfinished sculpture. Whereupon his teacher — "a giant of a man with a temper to match" — pointed out the error by raging and then cuffing the cowering apprentice behind the neck.

"That's the way we learned," Morigi says today. And learn he did. There are perhaps a dozen sophisticated stone carvers in America today, half of whom have been recognized as "masters" of the craft, and one of whom — Roger Morigi — is generally considered the maestro's maestro. It's been five decades since he's knocked a lily off a piece; even his mistakes now are wondrous art.

Morigi, in his sixties, is the chief carver for Washington's National Cathedral. He leads a group of seven carvers there, plus two lesser workmen who are not as advanced, and church officials say the Morigi-Cathedral tieup is fitting. The Church, a 65-year-old, $20 million gothic construction which is not yet finished, is perhaps the finest structure of its kind in the Americas. Morigi, equally dated and proud, is one of the few men in the world skilled enough to meet cathedral building standards.

ACTUALLY, skill is an inadequate description of Morigi's genius. Working with techniques that date to Michelangelo, with tools that have not changed since Nefertiti, Morigi does work that is priceless.

It is so, explains an associate, "because he is one of the last of his kind." Once the world was crammed with stone carvers, in the days when structures were careful creations of stone on stone; now there is glass siding, aluminum trim and hermetically sealed sterilization, and Roger Morigi is an endangered species. "When he goes," the associate says, "who will we have?"

There will be a few stone carvers left when Morigi stops; no doubt there will always be a few around. But Morigi is one of the last who link today with yesterday. No longer is stone carving passed from master to apprentice — "Kids today don't want to pay the price," says Morigi.

THUS WITH unionization and commercialization, not to mention laws which prohibit the cuffing of students, future carvers will learn from books and profit not from experience; and the loss will be irreversible.

So it is that authorities at the National Cathedral (officially the Cathedral Church of St. Peter and St. Paul) look after Morigi and his fellow carvers as any other finite treasure.

Completion of the 301-foot high church is at long last expected in the early 1980s, and such are the construction standards — many artistic touches have been done and redone repeatedly to pass muster — that only masters such as Morigi can assure completion. Morigi is not paid royally — $10 an hour — but his advice and idiosyncrasies are courted and favored.

"WHEN THE BIG fellows approach Roger," says a friend, "they do so with reverence for a true artist."

Truth to tell, Morigi is not an artist in the sense of being imaginative or experimental. He is a tradesman. The romantic artist works until he falls to the floor from fatigue; the unromantic Morigi remembers that even during the Depression, while working on a Philadelphia bank building, "I never tried for a dime of overtime. Came 4:30 and Roger went home to his family."

Yet though he follows the tradesman's work ethic, and though his job is not to invent but to copy the models of sculptors, he is, at least in execution artistically facile. Chipping away in his small and dusty shed, his hands flying and his feet moving animatedly around his piece, he makes it look easy. Easy? He once spent more than four years carving 44 angels for the Cathedral entrance — "one of the most perfect doorways in the world" — and he spent a tedious month apiece on 14 smallish Stations of the Cross plaques that decorate a New York State Jesuit grounds.

ALSO, MORIGI has the artist's sense of detail ("I never touch my stone with my hands; it leaves oil"), the artist's persistency ("I say to the stone: 'Stone, you ain't gonna whip me, I'm gonna whip you' "), and the artist's complex set of personal judgments ("I have no favorite work; to me nothing is ever really good enough").

Whatever he's called, though, artist or artisan, Morigi is a dinosaur on the earth. A short, stocky, bald, ebullient man, he is trapped in the bog of modernism, from which there is no escape. Not many contractors call for gargoyle carving anymore; the gargoyles and Roger Morigi are of another age.

American pewter more valuable than English

Collecting
with Grace Carolyn

We have a certain ethnocentricity about us that makes American antiques more desirable than their European or British counterparts, and pewter is no exception.

Pewter had been known for centuries abroad before we landed at Plymouth Rock and started moving the Indians over. Yet it was even more popular here because it was inexpensive, easy to work and a good substitute for silver. The first colonists brought their pewter with them, or their molds for making it, as early as 1640. The old methods of molding may be seen at Colonial Williamsburg, where one may purchase a spoon made exactly as it was 200 years ago.

A piece of American pewter, if it can be identified as such, is worth much more than its English counterpart, and especially with the approach of the bicentennial. American marked pewter is rare, for being soft and easily damaged, it was frequently melted down and remade, over and over. But if it bears a mark, a name impressed on the bottom, so much the better. The marks are most confusing, but generally both English and American pewter have the name or initials of the maker, rather than a device such as a flower or animal.

AN UNMARKED piece may be distinguished by its shape and function, such as the four-quart American cider pitcher shown. It is American, circa 1820. This piece is from the "coffeepot" era, when shapes imitated silver.

Remember that if your pewter says "pewter" on the bottom, it is relatively late, probably 20th century. A funny thing about many antiques is if they say what they are, they aren't!

This piece of pewter shown, as well as examples of almost any antique collecting category which interests you, may be seen at an upcoming antiques show, one you really shouldn't miss, for it is possibly the only opportunity to view "real antiques" in this area, in any quantity.

"COLLECTOR'S CHOICE" is the theme which expresses the broad spectrum of displays of the 13th annual Lake Forest Academy Antiques show. The show, scheduled for three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 6, 7 and 8, will be held in Reid Hall, Lake Forest Academy, 1500 W. Kennedy Road, Lake Forest. Reid Hall, formerly the J. Ogden Armour home, is the traditional setting, ideal for the display of fine antiques. To provide an atmosphere at which collectors may browse at their leisure, the Academy serves luncheon and light supper. The hours of the show are from 11 in the morning until 10 in the evening on June 6 and 7, and until 6 p.m. on the 8th. Cost of admission, $3.

Consider the $3 minimal tuition, for this show is a good opportunity to study and learn (and of course, buy!) from those dealers who have made good antiques a lifelong pursuit and passion. We will hope they will be friendly, but don't you be intimidated by price tags. Just enjoy!

'President's Men': story behind the front page news

The book stall

"ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN," BY CARL BERNSTEIN and BOB WOODWARD Simon and Schuster, $8.95

Bernstein and Woodward are the Washington Post reporters who kept digging into a "third rate burglary" at the Watergate and came up with a Pulitzer Prize.

When it all started, they were obscure. Now it's another matter and what they possibly can do for an encore is inconceivable.

Their book, written in the third person, isn't meant to be that encore — it is only incidentally the story of Watergate. It is very much the tale of how two men, barely acquainted and mutually suspicious at the start, learned teamwork to the point where their colleagues referred to them jointly as "Woodstein."

Even more, and here's where the fascination lies, it's the story behind the front page stories; how sources were developed, how hints and clues were confirmed into fact.

The story was unlike most almost from the beginning — before there was a question of it reaching the Oval Office of the President. The trouble was that there were not quotable, attributable sources. The few who would speak were reluctant or afraid to go on the record. That made it necessary to crosscheck each fact — call sources at Justice, the FBI, in the Administration, to try out the information on them.

There was Hugh Sloan, former aide to H. R. Haldeman, who had quit in dismay his post as treasurer of the Committee to Re-elect the President. Sloan's code forced him into becoming a confirmation source for the reporters.

Most intriguing, there was Deep Throat, who worked at the White House and would meet Woodward by prearranged signal at 2 a.m. in an underground garage. The book doesn't reveal Deep Throat's identity, which is ethical but frustrating.

Watergate is one of the all-time great newspaper stories and the way it all came about is equally compelling.

"KILGAREN," by ISABELLE HOLLAND Weybright and Talley, $6.95

Kilgaren, unlikely as it sounds, is the name of a Caribbean island — a tiny semi-feudal principality off Jamaica ruled by the British Kilgaren family for several centuries. It's an unusual setting for a Gothic, in which the intrigue is tied in with island politics and rebellion as the few white landholders want to hold on to their position, the islands are divided and the Kilgaren Lord equivocal.

"THE HOUSE AND CRAFTS BOOK," COMPILED BY Annelike Hoogewegen, Hummy Eijlders-van der Tonnekreek, Noortje de Roy and Thea Wamelink, translated by Patricia Cramption Diak $8.95

A great rainy day entertainment for every member of the family. The do-it-yourself projects range from cake frosting pictures children can make to stylized lamp shades and a wealth of simple furniture and furnishing designs to make the most of small quarters. The ideas originated in Denmark and Sweden.

'Wizard of Oz' this weekend

"The Wizard of Oz," which has delighted several generations of boys and girls, will be presented in four performances this weekend at Rand Park Fieldhouse, 2025 Miner St., Des Plaines, by the Footlighters, a young people's theater group.

Evening performances will be at 8 o'clock tonight and tomorrow, and matinees are scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, according to Ken L. Johnson, resident director of the Footlighters.

Tickets, at $1 for adults and 50 cents for children under 10, will be on sale at the door at all performances.

Lisa Marquette plays the lead role of Dorothy, the little girl who finds herself in the Land of Oz and goes to see the Wizard to learn how she can get back home to Kansas.

BILL WRIGHT portrays the Scarecrow who wants brains, Kevin Marquette is the Cowardly Lion who wants courage, and Steve Homeyer is the Tin Woodman who wants a heart.

Mrs. Grace Coash, radio and television performer and Des Plaines voice and piano teacher, is musical director, with Lisa Wolf as student assistant.

More than 75 Des Plaines boys and girls, from pre-school age to senior high, are involved in the cast and crew of the musical production.

Double-cast as the Good Witch of the North are Jill Reznick and Janet Seitz; Renee Tietze plays the Wicked Witch of the West; Beth Wurl is the Good Witch of the South.

Lisa Wolf is Aunt Em, Matthew Mlodoch plays the Wizard, Steve Scholl is Verdo, and Mary Androff is Jade.

THIS IS THE 11th season for the Des Plaines Footlighters. The young people's theater, only one of its kind in the Northwest suburbs, was started by the Des Plaines Park District in the fall of 1963 to give boys and girls opportunity for self-expression and to provide "live theater" for suburban area children.

Since its beginning, more than 500 young people have participated in the theater which also sponsors creative dramatics workshops throughout the year.

The "Starving Artists" Fair will be held on the OCC campus, Oakton and Nagle in Morton Grove, from 11 a.m. until dusk both days. In addition to the exhibits, there will be demonstrations in pottery, metal welding and spinning.

The 2 p.m. tryouts on Sunday are for singers and dancers. A second period, beginning at 8 p.m. is for acting and also for singers and dancers who are unable to make the afternoon session.

Additional tryouts are scheduled at 8 p.m. Monday. If all roles are not cast after these three audition periods, additional tryouts will be conducted on Wednesday. Further information, 296-1211. Auditions are open to anyone interested in community theater.

In addition there are speaking parts for eight men and two women, bit speaking parts for both males and females and many nonspeaking roles.

Directing the production is Joe McAuliffe of Schaumburg. Performances will be staged Aug. 23, 24, 30, 31 and Sept. 1. Additional information, 882-1894.

Alpert and his Tijuana are back

Three veteran music performers are experiencing new beginnings these days and each has an album out as a sort of celebration.

For Herb Alpert, it is a return to recording and touring after a five-year vacation. For Johnny Rivers, it is a new record label and a record cut outside of Los Angeles. For Ray Manzarek, it is a solo career and the end of the rock group The Doors.

"You Smile — The Song Begins" (A&M records) is Alpert and the Tijuana Brass's first album of new songs since 1969. Alpert recently said, "I had a great deal of fun doing what I do best — but I lost the fun for a while. I needed some time to recharge my batteries, so I took it."

THOSE LOADED batteries mean Alpert's horn playing is as fine as it ever was while he and the group were selling 45 million records. (They have five of the Top 20 albums early in 1966, a feat unequalled anyone before or since.) In the new album though, the musical approach isn't as punchy as it was in the past. The sound is mellower and a bit more jazzy.

The group's recent single, "Last Tango In Paris," is a highlight, together with "Promises, Promises" and "Save the Sunlight" (which has Lani Hall helping on the vocal).

"Road" (Atlantic records) is the result of Rivers' traveling to Nashville, Tenn., and Muscle Shoals, Ala. The album again underscores Rivers' talent in selecting the right songs and then doing some fine vocal interpretations.

Linda Ronstadt's beautiful voice is added to Rivers' strong versions of Michael Murphey's "Geronimo's Cadillac" and Sonny Curtis' "I Like Your Music." He also does well with Jimmy Cliff's reggae song "Sitting In Limbo." The song is fast becoming a classic, as even Three Dog Night included it in their last album.

ONLY ONE OF the 10 songs was penned by Rivers and it is "Artists and Poets," a tribute to Jim Croce, Gram Parsons and Bobby Darin, all of whom died recently. Rivers here continues to be one of the better male vocalists of the day. (Too bad the flying saucer on the inside record sleeve is never explained.)

Manzarek, former keyboard man for The Doors, has a strong debut album in "Th Golden Scarab" (Mercury records). The music is strong almost all the way through the the lyrics are alternatingly thought-provoking and obtuse.

According to Manzarek, the album, which is a song cycle, got its beginnings in an acid trip, Sigmund Freud's "Moses and Monotheism" and the Italian sunshine. It is about a search for consciousness, a messiah, he said.

"THE ALBUM IS about this guy who is waiting for the messiah. He's looking for someone to show him the way; it's about his search," Manzarek said. "Questions of his existence arise. He creates false idols . . . at the end he finds out that he can only do it himself. Take life as it is, don't judge it."

Profound as all that sounds (and surely is), the album's success lies in the music, an area in which Manzarek is skillfully aided by Tony Williams on drums, Jerry Scheff on bass and Larry Carlton on guitars. Carlton in particuar shines. Often the sound is reminiscent of The Doors', but it is a lot more jazzy and Manzarek calls on a number of exotic instruments, especially percussion, to create his sounds. Some of these instruments are the kalimba, cowbells, cabassa, bongos and quica.

A change of pace that works in the album is Manzarek's version of Chuck Berry's "Downbound Train" with its driving beat. Manzarek is at the Quiet Knight through Sunday.

ONE OF THE better rock satirists is the incredible Martin Mull whose newest album, "Normal" (Capricorn records), is anything but ordinary. Who else would think of using a touch telephone, saws, hammers, a heckler, vodka and a cash register among his instruments.

Although Mull's been as witty in the past, his music has never been better and as consistently pleasing. Among the songs of Siamese twins who are separated, a guy who could only "make the team" in high school at "Wood Shop," and others, my favorites are the title song and "Rome and Bored" (any song that mentions the Boston Bruins can't be bad).

Mull richly deserves the title of the Grand Buffoon o Rock — who else would want it?

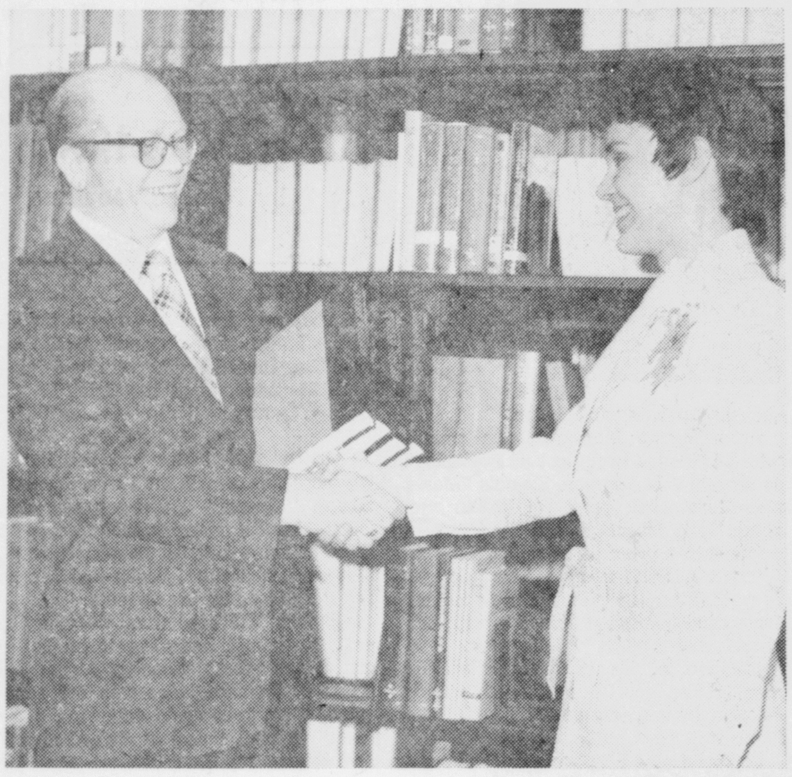
THE CONFUSION OF mistaken identities continues this Saturday at Guild Playhouse, Des Plaines, where Des Plaines Theatre Guild is presenting the comedy-farce "See How They Run." Arlette Dawson as Ida, the Cockney maid, tries to get a tipsy Miss Skillon, played by Kaye Peet, out of sight during the merry mixup of clerics in an English vicarage. The comedy will be staged again June 8. Curtain is 8:30 p.m. Tickets, 296-1211.



BOOKS ON THEATER and related subjects are presented by Bob Johnson, president of Masque and Staff community theater, to Librarian Mary Clark of the Elk Grove Village Public Library. It's been the theater groups custom for more than 10 years to give the library $100 each year for the purchase of such books. Masque and Staff's other annual philanthropy is a $500 scholarship to an Elk Grove High School senior. A committee is studying applicants now, and announcement of the award will be made at a later date.

Music staff named for 'Li'l Abner'

Plans for the summer production of "Li'l Abner" by The Players of Schaumburg were completed this week with selection of Pete Davis, Streamwood, as musical director; Normal Atwood, Hanover Park, as assistant musical director; and Barbara Kirchoff, Hoffman Estates, as accompanist.

Raoul Johnson, Schaumburg, was named earlier as director for the musical.

Other production staff announced this week are Sonja Leraas, Schaumburg, producer; Frank Halatek, Hanover Park, production manager; Sue Jersey, Palatine, assistant director; Lynda Sears, Mount Prospect, choreographer; Monti Leraas, Schaumburg, set construction; Lois Northway, Glendale Heights, costumes.

Comedian Lenny Bruce aptly portrayed on stage

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Lenny Bruce. His name is in center focus as a comedian born ahead of his time.

In the '50s Bruce was persecuted and frequently arrested for continuing to use four-letter words and caustic commentary to describe and poke fun at what he considered the ills of society but what the establishment held sacred and closed to ridicule. There were numerous clashes and Bruce usually lost.

Today the comedian would be called a social satirist. Then he was labeled a sick comic, often pulled off stage in the middle of his act and frequently booked on obscenity charges.

Bruce was sick all right, but due to all the booze and drugs he consumed that ultimately destroyed him. He died of an overdose.

Built around many of his old nightclub routines, the story of Lenny Bruce, "LENNY," is now being enacted on stage at the 11TH STREET THEATRE following its successful and recognized run on Broadway.

By JULIAN BARRY who is also directing the production, "Lenny" is an interesting review of Bruce's ideals and career highlighted by special effects and symbolism to underscore the hypocrisies of society.

TED SCHWARTZ in the title role does an excellent job in portraying the tragic comic, his rise to stardom, the disintegration of his marriage, his frequent bouts with the law, and ultimately his own destruction. It is a highly demanding role, one for which Schwartz has prepared well.

Though "Lenny" is disjointed and confusing to follow at the beginning, the play smooths out and hits home by the end of the first act. Unfortunately, it then drags at the end. The message is a good one, though the delivery is much too long and drawn out.

Brace yourself for stiff language. It's necessary to this production that thrives on tragedy more than laughs.

It's the type of provocative entertainment for which 11th Street Theatre is becoming noted upon its reopening. "Lenny" follows an extended run of the well-received "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

One of the freshest, most individual groups to hit the TACK ROOM at ARLINGTON PARK TOWERS is DOROTHY KAE AND THE NEW REFLECTIONS, a four-membered combo that will highlight its Chicago area engagements with a stint in Las Vegas. The arrangements make the difference, versatile and appealing.

Bill Cosby

On stage with songstress Dorothy Kae are bass guitarist BOB FAHSBENDE, also her husband, drummer RANDY OPELA, originally of Arlington Heights and pianist CHUCK JOBES. The combo is playing in the lounge through June 15.

The III SHEETER CLUB of Chicago will host its annual variety-vaudeville show next Wednesday at Mather High School, 5835 N. Lincoln Ave. The ARBORS will be the featured attraction on the program that begins at 8 o'clock. Proceeds from the show will benefit the North Suburban Unit of the Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation. Donation is $4.

Membership of the III Sheeter Club is limited to active male performers in the field of entertainment. Many members reside in the northwest suburbs including comedian Rusty Ryan of Mount Prospect, club president, and show chairman George Johnstone of Prospect Heights.

"It's getting so that every time you shake a bush in this area an entertainer jumps out," comments Johnstone.

BILL COSBY opened last night at the MILL RUN THEATRE for a four-night engagement through Sunday. He will be followed on Tuesday with a nightclub act of dancing and comedy featuring JOEL GREY and JAN MURRAY. The two will share the same bill through Sunday, June 9.

Singer BOBBY RYDELL opens in THE BLUE MAX of the HYATT REGENCY O'HARE this Monday preceded on stage by comedian CHARLES GASTON. Rydell, who as a teenager made hit recordings of "Volare" and "Wild One" and starred in the motion picture "Bye Bye Birdie," is booked at the Blue Max through June 15.

DON KNOTTS returns on Tuesday to ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE in "THE MIND WITH THE DIRTY MAN" and JERRY ORBACH, who starred on Broadway last season in the comedy, "6RMS RIV VU," recreates the role at PHEASANT RUN PLAYHOUSE also opening Tuesday.

The current entertainment attraction at CARSON INN NORDIC HILLS is Arlington Heights singer TOM CHRISTI. The young singer, who recently moved to this area from his hometown of South Bend, played football and majored in finance at college.

"But I always wanted to be a singer," he comments. Dinner in the SCANDINAVIA ROOM or VULCAN'S FORGE (where you can grill your own steak), followed by Tom's show, is a safe bet for a pleasant moderately priced evening out.

Father is a lover(?) contest

Father is a lover.

It may not take many words to elaborate on this subject, but if you can do it in 25 words or less, you may win for your father a picnic from Honey Bear Farms and a cruise for two on the Wendella on Lake Michigan.

Carson's, which recognizes that fathers are special but often hard to shop for, is repeating its Father's Day contest which offers 10 unusual Father's Day gifts for winners.

There are two new categories this year. "Father is an Adventurer," which offers the winner a hot air balloon ride for two, and "Father is an Ice Cream Buff" which will provide the winner with 33 pints of Bresler's ice cream.

Brochures on which to submit entries are available in the men's department of Carson's Randhurst store. Entries must be postmarked by Tuesday, June 11.

A guide to metric measure

Dear Dorothy: My mother sent me some Danish cookbooks from Europe. I'd like to bake some of the delicacies but am having trouble in changing from grams and kilograms and liters to ounces, cups and liquid measurements. — Lillian Carns

A liter is slightly more than a quart. Specifically, a liter is 0.26 part of a gallon, barely more than a fourth. One kilogram equals 2.205 pounds. One pound equals 0.4536 kilograms.

Here are some of the cup measurements as listed by the Danish Information Service. One cup of flour equals four and one-half ounces or 125 grams. One cup of sugar equals seven ounces or 200 grams. One cup of powdered sugar equals four and one-half ounces or 125 grams. One cup of butter equals one-half pound or 225 grams. One cup of cocoa equals three and one-half ounces or 100 grams. One cup of chopped almonds equals four and one-half ounces or 125 grams. One cup of rice equals seven ounces or 200 grams. Four cups of coconut flour equals four and one-half ounces or 125 grams. One cup of syrup equals 10 and one-half ounces or 300 grams and one cup of liquid equals two and one-quarter deciliters. Good luck on your endeavors.

Mr. Sid Zeilinger
Retail Advertising Manager
The Herald
Arlington Heights, Illinois

Dear Mr. Zeilinger:

Shade 'n' Shutter opened in Arlington Heights four and a half years ago. Since that time, we have acquired many new customers and have opened a store in Lombard.

We have enjoyed the success of our store, which carries everything but draperies for unique window treatments--shades, shutters, woven woods, cornices, columns--and would like you to know The Herald has been helpful in making our family store profitable. We've advertised regularly in The Herald since the day we opened, and we feel the advertising helped build and maintain Shade 'n' Shutter's trade.

We look forward to continued success through The Herald.

Cordially,

IT'S A FAMILY OPERATION. Owned by son Charles (left) and father Henry Schein and often operated by wife Marge, Shade 'n' Shutter in Arlington Heights offers everything but draperies for unique window treatments.

When the Shade 'n Shutter opened four and a half years ago, Charles and Henry Schein realized Herald advertising was the quickest way of establishing their reputation. They found that, in the northwest suburbs, only The Herald offers local businesses the advertising flexibility of a daily newspaper, the highest paid weekday circulation, and rates well within their budgets.

Today, Charles and Henry Schein don't argue with success; they continue to meet new customers in The Herald. Our thanks to the Scheins for letting The Herald be a part of their success.

Was power of prayer exaggerated?

Religion today

by Rev. Lester Kinsolving

The function of the Christian Science Committee on Publications is described in the Yearbook of American Churches as follows:

"Corrects in a Christian manner impositions on the public in regard to Christian Science."

Early this year, Rollyn E. Mayer of the Christian Science Committee on Publications for Indiana, wrote one of this column's Indiana publishers:

"Mr. Kinsolving . . . refers in a wholly misleading way to Christian Science. It seems necessary therefore to state that Christian Scientists are law-abiding and responsible members of the community."

THIS COLUMN HAS not mentioned the fact that currently among the nation's best known Christian Scientists are H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and Egil Krogh.

Nor is there any implication here intended that the average Christian Scientist is capable of the criminal charges for which these three former White House leaders have been indicted.

What this column did report prior to Mayer's charge of "wholly misleading" was the case of Cora Sutherland — the facts of which Mayer does not (and cannot) deny, except by way of innuendo.

For Cora Sutherland was a school teacher who exposed thousands of students to tuberculosis because, as a Christian Scientist, she refused to have an x-ray examination. She died in 1954, despite treatment by a Christian Science practitioner.

BUT, REBUTS MAYER, "They report all communicable diseases . . . Any Christian Scientist known to be suffering from a communicable disease would naturally report it."

Is it possible that the 1954 case of Cora Sutherland has now brought about such a reform that Mayer is accurate in his statement that "any Christian Scientist would naturally report" disease?

• When the 5-year-old daughter of Christian Scientist Dorothy Sheridan contracted pneumonia in 1967 she reported it, all right — but not to medical authorities. Mrs. Sheridan reported it to a Christian Science practitioner, who prayed — while the child died. A Massachusetts jury found Mrs. Sheridan guilty of contributing to the death of her child.

• On Oct. 19, 1972, the Connecticut State Department of Health received a report that at the Daycroft School, a Christian Science boarding and day school in Greenwich, there was a suspected outbreak of polio. The Health Department's Dr. DeWayne Andrews immediately launched an investigation of the report — which, he told this column, was not received from the Daycroft School authorities, but rather from an M.D. in Greenwich. (The first of the polio victims became ill on Sept. 29, Andrews subsequently learned.)

WHEN TESTS confirmed the report, Andrews ordered a quarantine as well as mass immunization of the 128 students and 35 faculty — a number of whom complained that this compromised their Christian Science faith.

Eleven of these youngsters suffered varying degrees of paralysis.

Five of the victims had been sent home — thus exposing children in New Hampshire, Massachusetts and New York to the terrible disease.

The other polio victims were sent to the school infirmary.

Since some of the boys played football, Andrews inquired as to how a compound fracture is treated in this Christian Science infirmary. Answer:

"A compound fracture can be healed with 30 minutes of prayer."

WHEN ANDREWS contacted another Christian Science school, Principia in St. Louis, in order to discuss the possibility of a similar epidemic, he recalls:

"They wouldn't even discuss the subject."

Neither would the national headquarters of the Committee On Publications, at Christian Science's "Mother Church" in Boston, when I telephoned to inquire.

Meanwhile, the Connecticut State Legislature still allows exemption from immunization to private schools with "strong religious objection."

It is fortunate therefore that in the Nutmeg State there are no religious fanatics who practice child sacrifice — only those who allow their children to be paralyzed, rather than inoculated.

Notes on religion

94% in U.S. believe in God: national paper

LANTANA, Fla. (UPI) — Ninety-four per cent of all Americans believe in the existence of God, says the National Enquirer.

Although church attendance dropped between 1958 and 1971, personal interest in religion remained high, said the publication, quoting a study by sociologists at the University of Michigan.

The researchers said churchgoers declined from 43 to 35 per cent, but more than half of the newest sampling said their interest in religion remained unchanged.

NEW ASSIGNMENT

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Gayraud S. Wilmore Jr., will become the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Professor of Black Church Studies at Colgate Rochester Divinity School-Bexley Hall-Crozier Theological Seminary here Saturday.

Wilmore also will direct the school's Black Church Studies program. A Presbyterian minister and scholar, Wilmore has been Martin Luther King Jr., professor of social ethics at the Boston University School of Theology.

Not For Luther

NEW YORK — Martin Luther would have hated the popular film "The Exorcist," in the opinion of the Lutheran Council-U.S.A.

Luther believed in a physical devil who stalked the world disturbing Christians and wreaking general havoc, the council said. But throughout his writing and teaching, Luther stressed that the Devil had no power to hold the faithful Christian, who is delivered from his clutches at baptism.

BIBLE STUDIES

NEW YORK — Group Bible studies are becoming more popular, according to the Assemblies of God Department of Education. The church's Berean Bible School gained 42 per cent in enrollments in correspondence Bible Study programs.

New Russian phoenix eclipses Spassky

Shelby Lyman on chess

"... the sum total of all these qualities turned him (Karpov) into a powerful tournament fighter, a super class grandmaster, with beautiful prospects for the future." These words, written by Boris Spassky shortly before his world elimination semi-final match with Anatole Karpov, now stand in bold relief, an ironic epitaph for the graveyard of Spassky's own world championship aspirations. For a new Russian phoenix has risen, a soaring challenge to the quiescent American eagle, now brooding half a world away in Southern California.

Karpov must still meet the magnificent fighter and recent conquerer of Petrosian, Viktor Korchnoi, in the candidates match final. But few would doubt that it will be Karpov facing Fischer a year from now for the world title.

The young Russian's last victory over Spassky was his best. A quick accumulation of advantages and then a few swift hammer blows forcing resignation from his usually diehard opponent.

Diagram 1

Our first position shows the sum of Karpov's advantages after his 25th move, Q-B3: a superior pawn position on the queen side (the black QRP is a permanent target), a far more active queen with latent threats on black's QB (i.e., 26. P-N4) and black's QBP (26. N-B3), rooks well posted and ready, and a versatile knight at K4 which at the moment prevents 25 ... P-KN3 (i.e., 26. N-B6 check).

Spassky is very hard pressed here, but his decision to trap the white bishop, a generous Trojan gift provided by Karpov, was either bad judgment or deliberate suicide. After 25 ... P-B4; 26. N-B3, P-N3; 27. QxP!, PxB, Boris won the bishop for a pawn and the wreckage of his king's position.

But he had no effective counter to Karpov's next move, 28. N-Q5. (See diagram two). The double threat of capturing the bishop and

Arizona's earthy colors earn All America Rose Selection

Arizona, a 1975 All-America Rose Selection, is as colorful as the state for which it was named. It's the color combination of bronze and copper with various shadings of yellow, red, pink and orange that makes Arizona so unusual in the rose family.

In addition to its color, Arizona has the asset of a light tea fragrance.

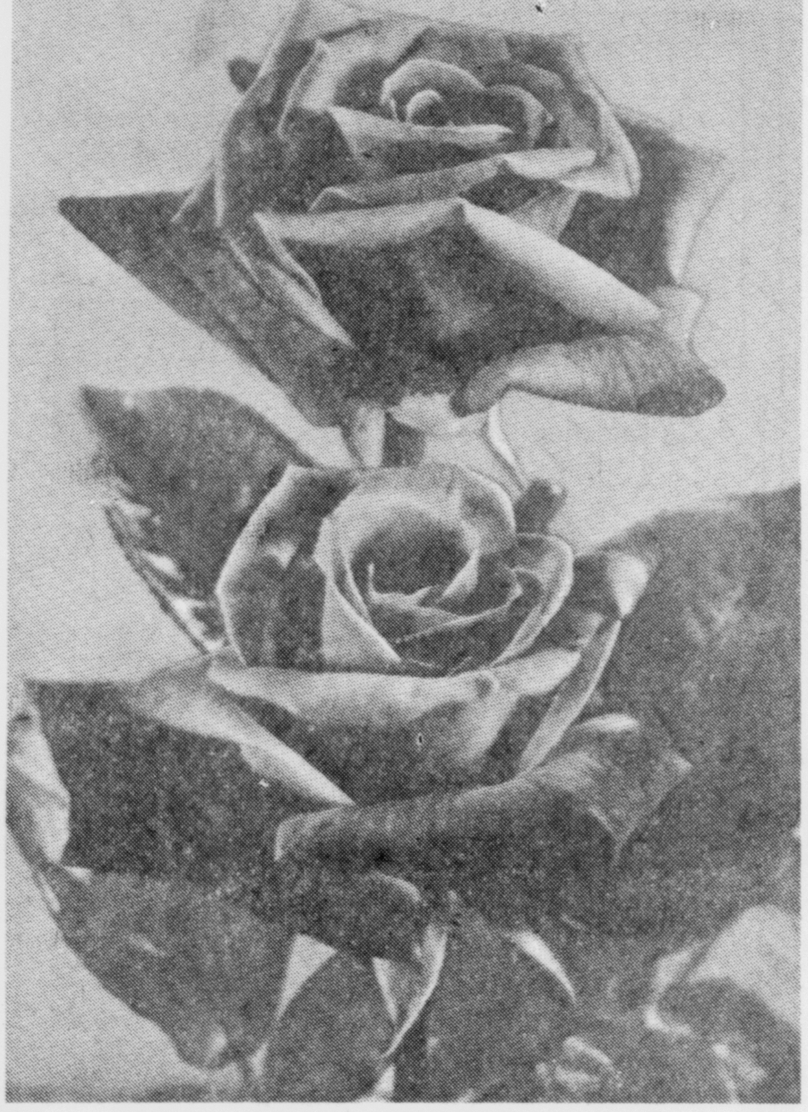
The well-shaped buds open to double blooms three to four inches across. As the buds unfold, the flowers take on a blend of yellow, copper and pink shadings, some of which deepen to scarlet with an occasional rich crimson on the outer petal margins. The rose is made up of 26 to 32 good-sized petals with five to seven smaller petaloids filling the center.

A vigorous grower with good sturdy stems, each of which carries several blossoms in a candelabra effect above the tall plants, Arizona is perfect for cutting. The plants branch freely, producing blooms throughout the summer.

New foliage is a shiny mahogany, gradually turning to a mahogany green and maturing dark green with a thick, leathery texture.

Arizona is quite free from mildew and has above average resistance to blackspot.

Originated by Ollie Weeks of Ontario, Calif., Arizona was developed by the same gardener who produced 1973 and 1974 All America winners, Gypsy and Perfume Delight.



THE EARTHY color combination of bronze and copper is what gave this All America Rose Selection its name of Arizona. The colors change shades throughout the summer, but remain beautiful and perfect for cutting for indoor arrangements.

ATTACHED REDWOOD deck extends the living area of this contemporary home. The less expensive redwood garden grades of lumber were chosen for economy as well as beauty. Redwood can be left to weather naturally to a handsome driftwood gray or water repellent can be applied to stabilize the color at buckskin tan.

New multi-purpose tool eases chores such as cultivating soil

A new multi-purpose tool designed to take the work out of a variety of tasks in and around the home has been introduced by the Black & Decker Manufacturing Co.

The No. 8300 Multivator uses three steel prongs for cultivating and pulverizing soil to control weeds. Other accessories that are available this spring include a spade edger to edge along sidewalks and gardens, a sanding pad for rough sanding wood and metal, a scraper for removing paint or rust and a wire brush for especially difficult clean-up projects. The unit has a 2.4 amp motor and reciprocates accessories at 1,750 strokes per minute.

Lightweight at about four pounds, the multivator is double insulated and has a sturdy ABS housing. For steady and safe control, it has forward and rear handles. The unit features the new detachable cord concept.

The No. 8300 Multivator with claw for cultivating is available at retail for $24.99. A multivator assortment including all accessories is also available and priced at $29.99. Accessories are available separately from $1.49 to $2.49.

PHOTOGRAPHERS call him Old Monk of the Gardens and after seeing the blossoms he and Mother Nature bring to Michigan City, Ind. the name is obvious. Clarence Stauffer, his real name, is one of the three Stauffer brothers who founded International Friendship Gardens after their success at the Chicago World's Fair. The other two brothers are now deceased, and the Old Monk alone is responsible for the beauty.

Lawns can grow in shady areas

Even those grasses recognized as good shade varieties, such as Highlight and Jamestown fine fescue, find the going difficult if shade is heavy. The grass can be helped by raising the mowing height, by regular fertilization, by watering deeply, by avoiding excessive wear, and by applying fungicides should disease threaten.

Grass loss is often due to disease which makes greater inroads where shade keeps plants at less than full strength.

your lawn today

by DR. BILL DANIEL

Don't get spring fever.

That's good advice when it comes to seeding or overseeding your lawn in early spring when the weather is still too unpredictable to assure the warm soil and consecutive mild days needed for maximum seed germination. Reseeding and repair work should be started as early as practical, but the key is to be practical. Seed (cool season grasses) normally germinates during the first extended warm spell, which can be the middle week of April in the Midwest.

Ideally, seed placed ¼-to-½ inch deep in the soil has the best survival potential. First spread seed in areas needing repair and then rake lightly. Next spike, slice and overseed to make additional openings and to press seed into the soil.

Finally, top-dress spots with soil from flower beds or your garden and then handwater the lawn to help wash seeds into the soil. Generally, it is wise to water a newly-seeded lawn daily until the grass is an inch high. Keep your lawn moist, but don't saturate or flood it because too much water can cause seedbed erosion and even inhibit germination.

Fertilizers and grass seed will cost up to twice more than last spring, but never has more selection been available to do-it-yourselfers. Ten new bluegrass varieties are available at modern garden shops.

The new perennial ryegrasses, including Manhattan and Pennfine, are superior to older types. If your lawn needs a quick initial cover, put down a ryegrass, which germinates in three to seven days. Bluegrasses are noted for tight, dense turf and have more disease resistance.

A final suggestion — if you didn't have your lawn mower serviced and the blade sharpened before putting it away last winter, do so now. Lawns cut by dull rotary blades are unsightly because each blade of grass has a brown, ragged and chewed edge — a condition that also makes grass more susceptible to disease.

Tiptoe through the tulips with Old Garden Monk

They're as colorful as Walt Disney creatures, and almost as animated. They're the tulips at International Friendship Gardens in Michigan, City, Ind., and right now they're displaying their finest blooms.

"It's our biggest show of the year," claim Clarence Stauffer, director of the gardens.

"Mother Nature fooled us again," he said about three weeks ago. "This morning there they were, hundreds upon hundreds of tulips in full bloom. Usually they bloom around Mother's Day weekend, but we've had some good, warm weather this year," he explained. According to Stauffer, the tulip show will continue through June, "a real treat for the brides in our early garden weddings."

He's often called the Old Garden Monk by photographers who find him one of the most knowledgeable gardeners around. Stauffer is one of the original trio of brothers who founded the Gardens in the early 1930's, following their highly popular exposition at the Chicago World's Fair. The other brothers are now deceased and Stauffer manages the Gardens alone. The Old Garden Monk admits to being in his very young eighties.

His lifetime has been spent with flowers, yet "each spring the wonder and beauty of nature are a new miracle to me," he admits.

All through the gardens, trees and shrubs bloom in spectacular array. Many varieties of hawthorne, peach, cherry, hyacinth and others blossom beautifully. The trees and flowers come from nations all over the world.

The gardens are open from 9 a.m. to dusk daily through October. For more information, send a self-addressed, stamped business-sized envelope to International Friendship Gardens, Michigan City, Ind., 46360.

Survey of local needs suggested

Wheeling transit action urged

Since it is becoming more and more obvious that the Wheeling bus service is not being financially supported by local business organizations, some serious thought to make the service more useful to those who are paying for it should be undertaken by Mr. Passolt and the village board of trustees.

Who pays to have this service available? Obviously the taxpayers of Wheeling do. This should not be a surprise for revenue sharing and future state and/or RTA subsidies will and are coming from taxpayers. While local businesses do pay their share of taxes, one wonders why the village officials seem to be unaware of other groups of people who pay taxes in the Wheeling area. Of course these groups are not as active in local politics as businessmen are; even so, they still constitute the major source of tax revenue in the Wheeling area. These other overlooked groups are the average taxpaying resident, and local industries.

Why have village officials failed to survey local mass transportation needs? How many people from the Wheeling area are employed in industries within the village, and who might make use of the bus if it were available? Why can not the bus be used to take people to the Northbrook train station?

It seems that village officials are showing only a half-hearted interest in commuter needs. Considering the stake which Wheeling residents have in the bus service it would seem that more pressure should be put upon village officials to come up with a better mass transportation plan for the Wheeling area.

'Aren't we adults?'

As a resident of Hoffman Estates, I would like to express my opinion regarding the proposed anti-obscenity ordinance now under consideration by the village board.

My question to Mr. Hofert, village attorney, would be why do we need such a law at all. Are not we as adults capable of determining what we should see or what we should read? Is an elected official or officials better at judging what is obscene than I am?

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that obscenity rulings should be left up to each community. Why not go one step further and leave it up to each individual as to what he cares to read or see.

After all isn't that what freedom is supposed to be all about.

'Reconsider flooding funds'

Please let us reconsider the flood control proposal!

As new homeowners and residents of Arlington Heights (August 1973) we had been advised of the flooding which occurs in our neighborhood and the homeowners' aftermath. However, no preparation could adequately include my discovery of our basement filled with sewage after the Thursday (May 16) downpours; the flooding of our backyard garden and streets and the efforts which it took to rid our home and yard of this debris. And, we learn, that the neighborhood has routinely endured this for many years prior to our arrival.

We find pleasure living in this community; we paid for a home in Arlington Heights so that we might participate in the lifestyle enjoyed there and the conveniences which it affords us in our employment. My husband and I are willing to pay for betterment of the community and an end to the flooding and sewage problems which create not only drudgery and financial loss for the homeowner but also unsanitary and hazardous conditions for all residents.

I hope that the village president and trustees will consider a resolution of this controversy so another referendum might be held or that they might be able to go ahead with the most critical projects, using federal revenue sharing funds. My support will be with any efforts in this direction.

He defends subscription non-renewals

Buffalo Grove trustee blasts Herald

In view of some expressions of concern in the Fence Post of May 16 with reference to the recent action of the Buffalo Grove Village Board in refusing to commit village funds for renewal subscriptions to The Herald, I believe it might be informative if I here set forth a summary of the reasons why I have apprised the village president and trustees that henceforth I will not support the expenditure of any village funds for the purpose of subsidizing the operations of Paddock. I so informed them by means of a memo dated April 24, shortly after the appearance of The Herald's April 22 editorial, "Officials ignore public."

In examining the warrant for the May 8 meeting, I noted three items for payment to Paddock. Two were for future subscriptions; the third was for advertising placed prior to my aforesaid April 24 memo. I thereupon commented at the board meeting that I would not personally vote approval of the two subscription items. Neither then, nor in my earlier memo, did I urge similar action upon other board members. I was therefore somewhat surprised, and not a little gratified, when a majority of the other trustees similarly voted disapproval of the two subscription items. While the gesture may have been merely symbolic, it did signify to me that perhaps some other board members similarly sensed outrage at the morally reprehensible level of distortion and character assassination which the editorial in question evinced.

Both in my public comments at the May 8 meeting and in my earlier memo I described Paddock's editorial policy as "vicious, abusive and intellectually dishonest." As applied to the editorial in question, such in fact is an understatement.

I have been reluctant to take up that editorial on a point by point basis for a reason as simple as reluctance to wade into a literary cesspool. Nonetheless I will do so now, for the sake of those readers whom Paddock has so unconscionably misled.

At the outset I will treat of one accusation so patently ridiculous that even one as accustomed as myself to Paddock's light regard for truth and civility was astonished, viz., your assertion that village operations have not been open. To the contrary, and as Paddock well knows, open government and cooperative assistance to the press have been characteristic of Buffalo Grove government. It has been village policy to make available to all interested newspapers, Paddock included, full and complete packets of weekly agenda material, with no charge for the duplicating expense involved. Even in the instance of the vehicle stickers, your reporter was given free access to village files. If there has ever been an instance of discourtesy or unprofessional conduct to a Paddock representative in our village hall — including lack of access to free coffee during meetings — it has never been brought to my attention.

Turning now to the subject matter of the editorial in question, it dealt with two separate items, one proposed salary ranges, the other municipal vehicle stickers. I will herein treat them separately.

As regards proposed salary ranges, The Herald imputes to the board an intent to put same into effect without open, public discussion. In this regard I will state unequivocally that it has never been my intention, nor to my knowledge that of any other member of the board, that any final action would be taken on this matter without open discussion. Paddock is certainly aware that it has been the practice of this board to invite open citizen participation at board meetings, which is a significant factor why our meetings so often run very late.

Preliminary discussion of salary range was, indeed, held in executive session, this for the reason that a village of our size has a relatively large number of employment classifications vis-a-vis actual employes. In effect, therefore, discussion of salary adjustments by job category often boils down to a critique of the performance of individual employes. I do not myself believe it to be in the public interest that supervisors' attitudes regarding the strengths and weaknesses of particular employes should be publicly aired. Such is not the prevailing practice either in public or in private employment. If undertaken, it would strip village employes of their legitimate right to privacy, and would almost inevitably inhibit free and frank discussion of their performance.

In this context the editorial suggests that the Board "re-read" (sic) the "decision" (sic) of the Illinois Attorney General on the Open Meeting Law. This recommendation entails not one, but two, false premises, a commendable accomplishment even for Paddock's editorialists. First, it presumes that we had previously read the "decision" (we had in fact not even heard of it); and second it presumes that the attorney general has the authority to render decisions (a function reserved, under our American legal system, for the courts). Had Paddock been motivated by even a sense of simple fairness, it could easily have ascertained whether board members were aware of the attorney general's recent opinion on this point.

In any event, the validity of the attorney general's opinion is open to serious question. Even though the Open Meeting Law has been on the books for many years, no decision has ever been rendered supportive of that opinion. The relevant portion of the statute exempts from the requirement of open discussion the consideration of "information regarding. . .employment. . .of an employee. . .," and in practice there has been widespread reliance by governmental bodies that this language protects the right of public employes to privacy in the context of salary reviews. The courts might, of course, eventually accept the restrictive interpretation of the Attorney General that the excemption encompasses only hiring and firing, not promotion or demotion. But there is good reason to believe that the courts might well disagree with the Attorney General, and find public policy better served by the traditional, more liberal interpretation. (On this point I personally find the position of the attorney general less than persuasive, and I am disposed against taking part in public discussion of the performance of specific village employes unless and until the courts rule that this is the law.)

Shifting now to the matter of the sale of municipal stickers to Grand Spaulding Dodge, The Herald imputes to the board "terrible weaknesses" (precisely what weaknesses and why they are terrible you don't say) because the "village is engaged in a cozy deal;" and you assert, without qualification, that: "The arrangement is illegal."

By innuendo, therefore, you have suggested that certain individuals (not named) have entered into an arrangement which is illegal, as well as "sweet" and "cozy." You link this with a vague reference to "more favors from people who must deal with the village."

Amidst all these ominous and foreboding words, you omit to state a few important things: for instance, whether the illegality you allege is civil or criminal in nature; when, where and among whom the "deal" was concocted; and what the consideration was they received. Nor do you specify which particular provision of what specific laws were violated; nor, of course, do you point to any adjudication of guilt or responsibility by any court.

Both as a resident and a trustee, I am certainly concerned if anyone connected with village government has acted other than in the best interests of the village; but neither in this editorial nor in any related news story does The Herald furnish any facts supporting the likelihood of such a suggestion. Instead you merely engage in smear tactics, throwing mud at everyone in village government.

I earlier described the editorial in question as a literary cesspool, and I believe I have waded through it far enough. I will summarize by asserting that since I hold nothing but contempt for Paddock's brand of gutter journalism, I cannot in good conscience vote to expend further village funds toward its subsidization. I believe the people who elected me did so expecting a more informed and critical sense of judgment than that would entail.

As regards the technicality of legal notices, there are available for that purpose several other publications, none of which is so thoroughly devoid of fairness, balance and elemental decency. I believe we ought to employ these alternative sources; it is of course the right of other board members to agree or disagree, as they so choose.

Seeks service groups

Before the last blood drawing the chairman of this project sent over 690 cards to 23 civic organizations and he received next to no response.

From the people of Wheeling I regret to say we had basically the same response.

This is not a Jaycee project; this is a community project! Why aren't the other service organizations helping their community? Why aren't the people of Wheeling helping each other?

I say, people of Wheeling, support your community blood bank at its next drawing.

Arab money called 'pollution'

I'm against Arab ownership of land in the United States. I favor a land policy like our neighbors, Mexico and Canada, who restrict ownership by foreigners. Our economic health, well being and security depend on this. Like pollution, this starts slowly, then it snowballs until you can't do anything about it, then it is too late.

In Hawaii, we have an example of what can happen. The entire island of Molokai was taken out of pineapple production this year, because foreign companies own the land and decided it was cheaper to grow pineapples in the Philippines, leaving thousands of workers out of jobs. It's easy to mess things up in this country. Just think what could happen if the Arabs bought the "King Ranch" in Texas and decided not to raise or sell beef in the United States.

Foreigners with too much money can cause us trouble, which only Congress could straighten out, but every one knows Congress is ruled by "special interests."

Europe has reacted against the invasion of American money, which is quite small compared to what the Arabs can do, and they are taking steps to limit our investments. We ought to learn a lesson from them and nip the problems in the bud, or we will end up as second class citizens.

We in this country have been brainwashed in a lot of ways. There is the danger that if the Arabs control the land, they may control our thinking. I think the sovereignty of the United States depends on land ownership by Americans.

Pollution seems to be the big problem today. Arab money can become a form of pollution in this country. Nobody thought we could pollute the Great Lakes, but we did. The danger from Arab money may seem small now, but they have so much potential which could be poured into this country for land investments that we, at the present, can't even visualize it. The time to stop is before they begin.

Variety show applauded

Kudos to Mrs. Staahl for your direction of the "Rand Sampler" variety show, Friday, May 18. The selfless effort by you and all the teachers at Rand Junior High was apparent throughout the well balanced, totally absorbing, production.

Congratulations to the Rand students whose excellent, spirited performances reflected the talent and hard work that they contributed to make the "Sampler" a delight to watch.

Parents who were not able to attend the "Sampler" missed an opportunity to observe an excellent display of teachers and students working together harmoniously. By all means, plan to attend next years show.

And finally, shame on the editors of the Paddock who, although you were invited, could not schedule coverage of the show. You have lost a chance to observe and report on a reassuring display of added dimension in education at work in Dist. 25.

I hope your selflessness, Mrs. Staahl, is as rewarding to you as it is to parents and students you have contact with.

'Welcome Wagon never came out'

My husband, daughter and I moved to Schaumburg in November, 1972. I called the Welcome Wagon; they never came out. They were due early in January, 1973 (because of the holidays). I am still waiting. We then found out we were to have a "new addition," so I saw they advertised for new brides-to-be or new mothers to call the Welcome Wagon. I tried again.

The hostess from the Welcome Wagon was due at our home on February 16. Our new daughter was born March 29, 1974. I am still waiting. The people I called had my name and phone number. They could have at least said they weren't coming. Since we live in Sheffield Manor, I even specified that; they knew where it was and there would be no problem.

All I would like to know is what was the problem? Thank goodness, our love for this fantastic suburb is far greater than my love for the organization who was to welcome us to it.

Great expectations for 84-day meeting

Arlington Park approaches starting gate

Paddock Patrol

by Jim Cook
TURF EDITOR

You don't have to be a magician to enjoy thoroughbred horseracing, but it may help you appreciate some of the tricks Arlington Park has up its sleeve this summer.

The Arlington Heights track will be celebrating its 47th birthday when it swings open its gates for what promises to be a gala 84-day racing season Monday with post time at 2 p.m.

"I can't remember the last time we were so excited about an opening," Tom Rivera, Director of Advertising and Publicity, bubbled. "We have prime race dates, better trainers, better jockeys and better horses than we've had in a long time."

Part of the enthusiasm was sparked when the announcement that Eddie McKenzie was named to the position of racing secretary. Involved in the business since 1953 and holder of the same position at Gulfstream Park for the past eight years, McKenzie also promises a bright future for the northwest suburban plant.

"It is my feeling that Chicago racing has only just scratched the surface," he said. "The thoroughbred market in the midwest has nowhere to go but up. "If I am fortunate enough to be able to bring some of the old outfits back, we can make Chicago into a second New York. The potential is tremendous. We'll start right at the beginning and won't play any favorites."

The first thing Arlington Park pulls out of the hat will be celebrated comedian Don Knotts who will get Monday's show off to a high-pitched start when he handles the call of the first race from a perch atop a scaffold in the winner's circle.

Be ready for some one-liners during the stretch run and be sure to hold all tickets until the results are official. The order of finish may be tied in Knotts.

The next wave of the wand will be a riding exhibition by some of the nation's premier reinsmen in what is billed as the World Jockeys' Championship.

Already in the fold for the $10,000, "Winner Take All" showdown are Laffit Pincay, Jr., Bill Hartack, Sandy Hawley and Larry Snyder while officials await word from Bill Shoemaker and Ron Turcotte.

The cream of the jockey crop will ride five races and accumulate points in the order in which they finish . . . five for first, four for second, three for third, two for fourth and one for fifth.

Each will be aboard one favorite, one second choice, one third, one fourth and one fifth as deemed by McKinsey who will handicap the races.

Pincay has established himself as the country's leading pilot in terms of money earned. For the past four seasons, the 27-year-old has pocketed nearly 14 million dollars.

Hartack is the legend in the field. His five Kentucky Derby victories equal Eddie Arcaro's all-time performance. Hartack is expected to be a regular at Arlington Park this summer.

Snyder is another national champion, riding more winners than any other jockey in North America in 1969. Hawley has already made his mark at the yearling age of 24.

Last year he personally accounted for 515 winning mounts to set a new world's record. He broke Shoemaker's mark of 485 when he strolled home in the irons of Night Train Lane at Laurel Race Course in Maryland in December.

And if Knotts' call and the jockeys' derby haven't satisfied your appetite, feast your eyes on the featured running of the $20,000 Fast Hilarious Handicap, a six furlong event for three-year-olds and up.

Nominated for the sprint are such standouts as Full Pocket (if he decides to carry a staggering 132 pounds), Bootlegger's Pet, Road Man Tom Tulle, Blue Chip Dan and Close Watch.

Arlington's turf course will get an immediate workout Monday with both the seventh (mile) and the ninth (mile and one-sixteenth) slated on the carpet.

Maintenance crews have cut the grass the past four days, but as of Wednesday, it was still ankle high and healthy as ever. Poor spring weather crippled turf racing last year.

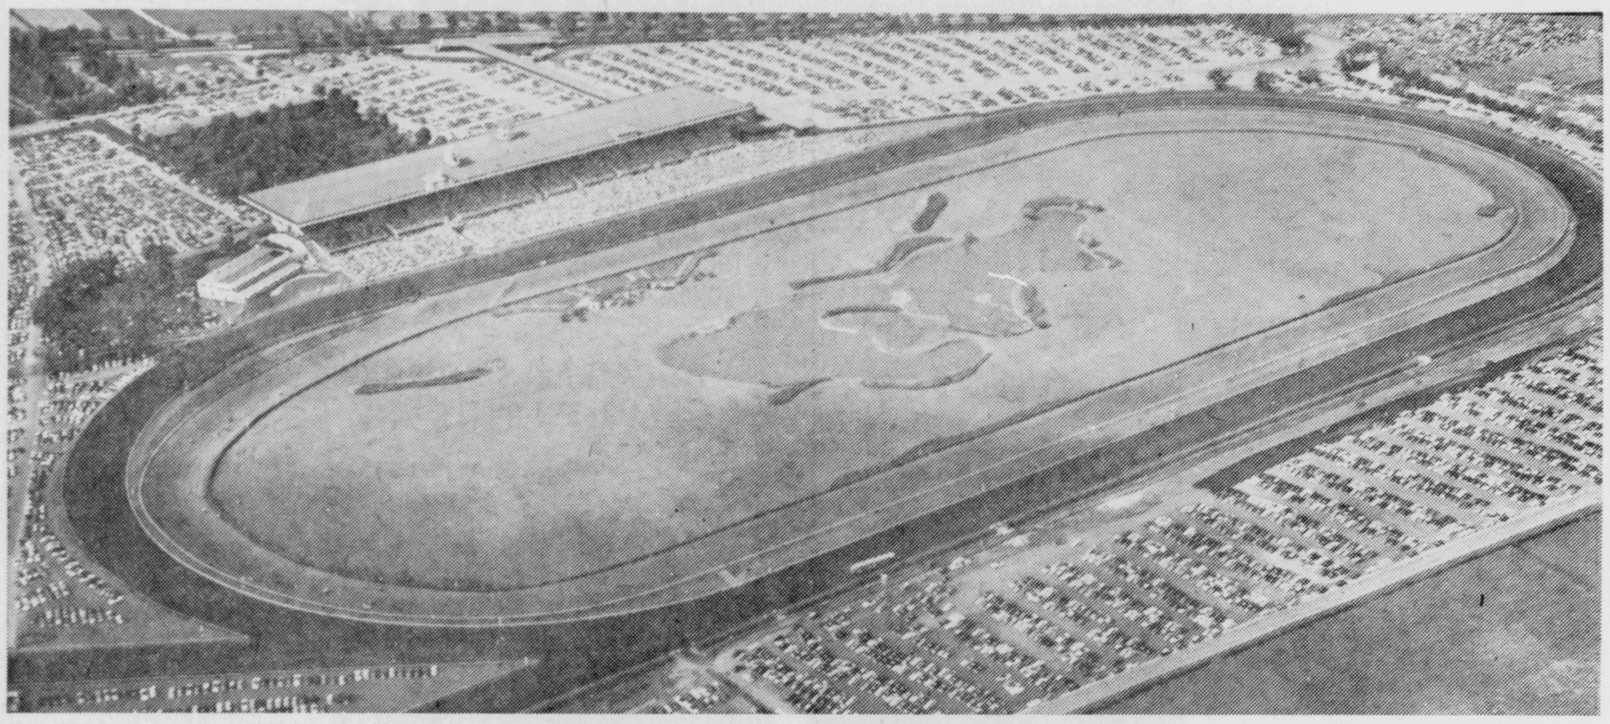
Track officials have also announced that the five races comprising the Tuborg Classic Series will be televised live on CBS-TV in one-half hour segments.

Scheduled for the tube are the $50,000-added Round Table Handicap on July 27, the $50,000-added Washington Park Handicap on Aug. 10, the $100,000-added American Derby on Aug. 24, the $35,000-added Arlington-Washington Lassie Stakes on Aug. 31 and the concluding $100,000-added Arlington Handicap on Sept. 7.

In response to the enjoyable picnic-type atmosphere created at the Arlington Invitational last season when Secretariat made his local appearance, track officials are planning to open the spacious infield facilities to accompany an anticipated overflow crowd on the 4th of July. The $50,000-added Stars & Stripes Handicap highlights the holiday card.

Per usual, in addition to regular wagering on the nine races; there will also be a daily double on the first and second, three quinellas (third, fifth and seventh) and the trifecta on th ninth.

But you'll have to supply the magic of picking the horse, yourself.



ARLINGTON PARK IS BUZZING with anticipation on the eve of its 1974 opening Monday at 2 p.m. The 84 prime racing dates in the heart of summer, a new racing secretary and a barrel of features are expected to make this season one of the most prosperous in the track's history.

Thoughts for a final May day

There are things you wonder about on this final day of May.

You wonder what they're doing with a team in the Arlington Boys Baseball program that within the space of five days last week won by scores of 40-0, 29-4, and 43-0.

It's one thing to have strong teams, but that's ridiculous. The kids are supposed to have some fun and learn the game. Something should be done to put some balance into these programs.

You wonder just how long professional baseball can put up with Bowie Kuhn as its commissioner. Did you catch him on the Today show the other morning? His arrogant logic is getting harder to take every day.

For that matter, you wonder how much longer people will be able to put up with Pete Rozelle's pigskin chic as the National Football League Commissioner.

You wonder how some Chicago sportscasters can justify those nights when they only give the Cubs and White Sox scores and ignore the rest of major league baseball.

You wonder how World Team Tennis will ever survive. And what it's doing there in the first place. It seems like another example of the over-exploitation of sports.

Speaking of tennis, you wonder if they aren't going a bit overboard on television. Isn't there just too much tennis on the tube right now? It seems like every week they're playing for some world title on every channel!

You also wonder if there just isn't too much golf on television.

You used to be able to enjoy the golf meets, but they're boring now for the most part. There's nothing like watching the pros in person, and that's why you look forward to the Western Open every summer in the Chicago area. Then you don't have to rely on announcers Ray "Magnificent Shot" Scott or Chris "Everything is Beautiful" Schenkel.

You wonder how they can hold any big track meet these days without the aid of electronic timers. It was inexcusable what happened to Lane Tech at the state track and field meet Saturday in Charleston.

East St. Louis and Lane crossed the finish line almost simultaneously in the 440-yard relay. It necessitated a look at video tape to determine a winner. East St. Louis was declared the winner in a record time of 42.7, but Lane Tech was given an unbelievable 43 flat for its second place in that heat.

That 43 flat eventually put the Indians in third place behind Bloom which had run a 42.9 in the first heat. This cost Lane an undisputed state team championship.

Unless the 42.7 for East St. Louis was two-tenths of a second off, a time of 42.8 or 42.9 was clearly warranted for Lane Tech, a time which would have enabled the Indians to move up a place.

Since there was no electronic timing, they had to use the timer's judgment and in this case it was very bad judgment.

You wonder about some more things.

You wonder just how long baseball owners can continue to make up absurd reasons for not hiring a black manager. Maybe they're afraid of the repercussions if they would ever have to fire a black manager, but they can't keep putting it off. San Diego really blew it by not hiring Maury Wills. Here was the ideal time for a team interested in a new image to make the big move.

You wonder why people feel aging athletes should retire when they are past their peak. Don't they consider that an athlete then IS at his lifetime peak of salary. That's obviously why they hang on.

You wonder if there's ever been a better golf instruction book than the one currently on the market, "Golf My Way" by Jack Nicklaus. It's a beautifully-prepared book, and extremely readable as golf books go, but the price ($9.95) may scare some people away. There are many golf instruction books available in paperback, but the Nicklaus book is all anyone really needs. It's worth the money for someone who really wants to improve his game, and understand his game.

You wonder if someone can't talk Chuck Bell's folks into staying in Palatine. Bell, that sensational sophomore, finished second in the state mile run last Saturday in Charleston with a superb run, an extremely intelligent race, but that was his final performance for Palatine. He's moving to Texas.

Maybe it all evens out. Palatine once received a super transfer from Texas in sprinter Duane Brooks.

You wonder why they keep pumping out that baloney about Don Meredith trying to "find himself" in his move from ABC to NBC. He switched for money — what else? He is receiving seven times as much as he was for his Monday night football assignments.

You wonder how college administrations can justify some of the recruiting nonsense that goes on and is public knowledge. There has to be a better way to channel this money.

It has been estimated that the University of Oregon spent close to $8,000 in attempting to recruit basketball star Audie Matthews of Bloom, who finally wound up at Illinois. Just a couple weeks before Matthews signed with Illinois four Oregon coaches — four! — flew to Chicago Heights. Noting that round-trip plane travel costs about $240, that amounts to nearly $1,000 for plane fare. And an Oregon coach reportedly made 19 — 19! — previous visits to Chicago Heights during the season.

You wonder if there just isn't too much incentive to lose at the end of the regular season in professional basketball.

During the final two or three weeks of the regular schedule television sportscasters and sportswriters were making jokes about the race-in-reverse for the right to flip a coin for the chance to sign UCLA star Bill Walton.

Basketball's history as the most easily fixed sport can't be wiped out of the public consciousness. Anything that appears to give a team an incentive to lose should be avoided in all sports, but particularly in basketball.

That No. 1 draft choice means so much more, proportionately, in basketball then in other games because a No. 1 pick can't possibly basically change the status of a football, baseball or hockey team overnight, but one man can make a tremendous difference in basketball — as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's career at Milwaukee has shown.

The stakes in getting the top draft choice in some years — Walton this year — are immense. There is just too much incentive to lose in the closing weeks, or actually all season if your franchise is floundering anyway.

Maybe they should give the No. 1 pick to the team with the SECOND worst record. Think about that.

There will be more things to wonder about at another time.

Styles vary, personalities show in softball tournament pitchers

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

These guys are not your every Sunday 16 inch softball players who slop beer out of their cups when they run the bases and compare guts between innings.

Sure, there are guts and there are crewcuts and tattoos and a lot of muscle hardened in warehouses or on construction lots. And between games there is a lot of beer.

But these men, these athletes, who played in the Windy City Softball Classic are as nearly professional as you can get in a game where most of the money you make you make on the sly. And what they appraoch in professional status is hitting.

You would not imagine that a softball, hard and white when the game begins and progressively pillowed as the game is played, could be hit as hard or as far as these men hit it. At Meadows Park, where the Windy City was played over the weekend, the balls disappeared into the shadows beyond the outfield lights like stars going into the black holes of deep space.

Yet because it is a hitter's game and often the hitters blur in the memory into a single searing line drive, the pitchers become the personalities of the game and it is the pitchers, with their groesque body and facial contortions, who are remembered longest.

Jack Suomi is a man who can both hit and pitch. With teammate Jack Olson he shared the tournament batting championship. Both were 11-for-15, a .733 average. Both are tall, Olson running to fat, Suomi to emaciation. The point being that in 16-inch everybody, even a pitcher, hits.

During a game, whether it is close or not, Suomi's facial muscles undergo a workout that would try even the most ebullient beauty queen. Every call by the umpire, every play and, in fact, anything at all that has the remotest bearing on the game is registered in his face with varying degrees of disgust or elation.

Hit pitching style is appropriately varied. Pitchers are allowed to take a single hop and step either to the left or right of the mound, depending on which field the batter usually hits to. Once he is in this position he is allowed two fakes before releasing the pitch.

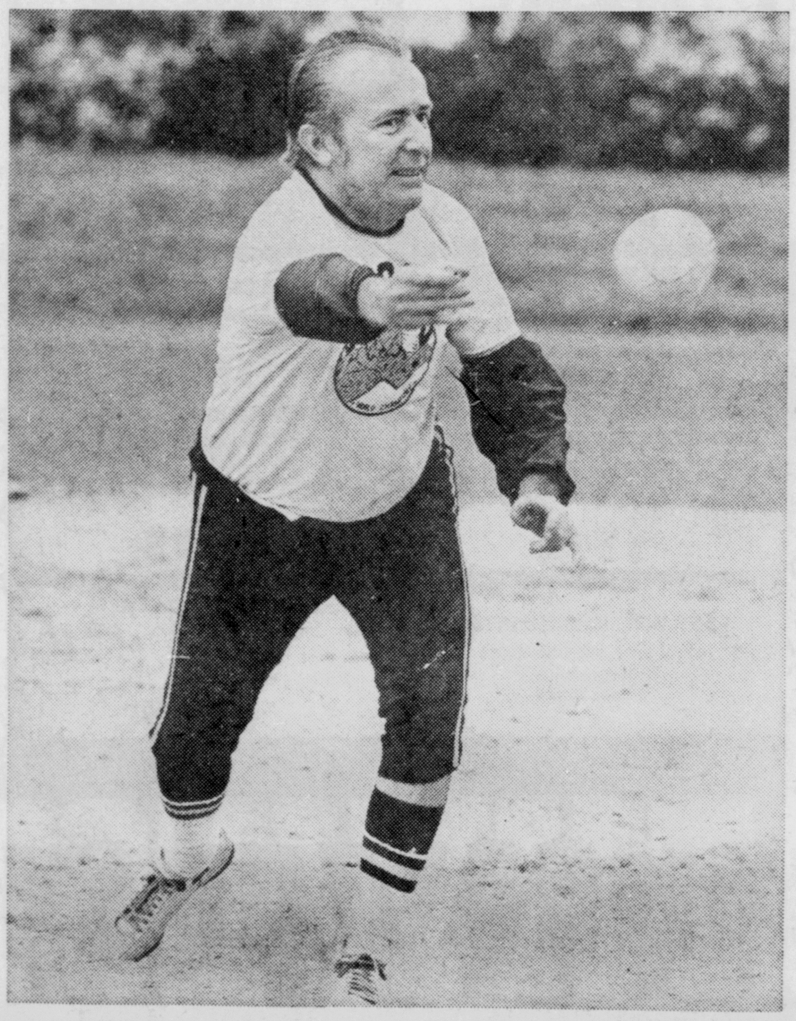
The importance of the fakes seems exaggerated at times but an outstanding pitcher will have the batter twitching and off balance when the pitch arrives.

Suomi adds to these basic diversions by releasing the ball from a bizarre variety of angles, the most unnerving of which seems to defy the laws of the average shoulder joint and almost resembles an overhand pitch.

Forsaking Suomi's contortionist style of pitching, Eddie Zolna of the Bobcats relies on intellect and intimidation. A formula that has allowed him to successfully pitch more than 100 games a season for more than 20 years.

"Pitching is an art," said Randy Hoffman, himself a pitcher for the Mysterians and one of the directors of the tournament. "The pitcher is responsible for the placement of the fielders and he must then position the ball accordingly."

This calls for an extensive knowledge of the hitters and their hitting preferences. Some, like Bobcat Jake Jacobi, are so predictable it eventually catches up to them.



THIS IS EDDIE ZOLNA, pitcher for the world champion Bobcats, delivering the ball in the opening round of the Windy City Classic held last weekend. Called "Generation Gap" by the other players in deference to his age and experience, Zolna pitched his team into the title game before losing to the Strikers, 13-5. The Bobcats played five games the final day.

Jacobi was so well known for hitting line drives to a certain spot in left field that an extra outfielder was used against him in the world tournament and almost frustrated him completely.

Since the players in the Windy City play against each other all summer their styles are familiar and the fielders compensate themselves. If Zolna wants an adjustment he'll halt the game until it is made.

Zolna applies his subtle form of intimidation on anybody he feels needs intimidating. Usually the umpiring crew.

When the Bobcats are batting Zolna stands as close to the umpire as possible and comments on each pitch. His favorite term is, "Heavy," a reference to his belief that the opposing pitcher isn't putting enough arch on the ball.

On the mound he demands constant clarification of the strike zone, explanations to rules he knows better than the umpire and, his favorite trick, the count.

Barking in his squeaky, disapproving voice Zolna will allow the umpire perhaps a second to report the count before accusing him of loafing on the job, if not downright incompetence.

Opponents know Eddie's style and try to counterbalance it on the sidelines, reminding the ump not to let Zolna talk him into any strikes. It is a war of words that Eddie Zolna has won often enough to satisfy himself but not enough to keep him quiet.

Somewhere between Jack Suomi and Eddie Zolna lies Mike Tallo. The Most Valuable Player in the Windy City tournament, Tallo was relaxing on the sidelines when his Strikers went out for the first of what proved to be two games against the Bobcats.

Tallo's ankle was bothering him and had to be heavily taped to allow him to play at all. The Strikers' hope was to knock off the Bobcats in the first game, winning the championship without forcing Tallo to play anymore.

Eddie Zolna ruined that strategy by subduing the Strikers, 9-4.

Following the loss the Strikers wandered off the field seemingly devoid of adrenalin. The Bobcats, on the other hand, were mobbing each other with happiness.

Mike Tallo knew he would have to pitch again and went through the ritual of having his ankle taped. He sat stoically on a picnic table, complaining only once when the old tape removed the hair on his leg.

Resplendent in high top green tennis shoes, he pitched his team to a 13-5 win. He had neither the pitching motions of Jack Suomi nor the sniping hostility of Eddie Zolna. Yet he easily beat the Bobcats.

In voting for the MVP, tournament director Olson defended Tallo. "The important thing about Mike is that he knows the hitters and pitches away from their strengths. Plus his players believe in him."

Surely the Bobcats believe in Eddie Zolna and the Scrappers in Jack Suomi, but the Strikers are champions.

At least for awhile, Mike Tallo had the necessary blend of pitching, intelligence, emotion and hitting to win.

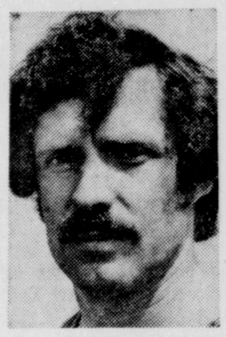
Newcomers golf launches season

The Arlington Heights Newcomers Club opened its golf season at the Arlington Country Club with 55 members qualifying for handicaps.

Bea Dunn turned in a very impressive score on the back nine with a 46 after capturing one birdie on the par three 12th hole and pars on both the 16th and 17th holes. Pars also were recorded for Esther Wheeler and Pat Abbott on the 12th hole and for Love Galvanoni on the par three 16th hole.

Cheryl Wersland very happily showed her foursome how to sink a chip shot on the 10th hole; and Marcy Haupt was so intent on getting her ball over the water hazard on 15 that the clubhead of her new 5 iron soared over the water with her ball.

Top track position open at Palatine



Joe Johnson

Joe Johnson will step down as head track coach at Palatine High School after 12 years at the helm of the area's most successful track program.

Johnson, who came to Palatine in 1962 to replace the departing Ron Helberg, will stay on as cross country coach, but he will be devoting most of his time to the Cooperative Work Training program next year.

"I wouldn't get out if I didn't think there were other good men in the program," said Johnson yesterday. "I've got a lot of confidence in them, people like assistant coaches Jeff Teach and Ron Sloan.

"But it's been a great experience — I wouldn't trade it for anything," Johnson continued. "I kind of stepped into a good thing here."

Palatine's outgoing coach has carried on a fine track tradition at the oldest school in Dist. 211. Johnson's teams scored points in 13 consecutive state meets before the string was broken last year. In this year's meet, Pirate miler Chuck Bell took second place with an excellent performance to begin a new streak.

Johnson explained that his move was based on a combination of factors. "I want to have more time for some other things, but I still want to take an interest in track. I want to get involved in club running and I want to do a little running myself. I need more time. It's a long season."

Palatine athletic director Chic Anderson has the chore of filling Johnson's shoes. "Joe's going to be a tough man to replace," Anderson said. "He can look back on the record here and say that he had a tremendous influence on track. The track tradition here at Palatine has increased — gotten better — since Joe came here.

"And Joe is so good with kids," Anderson went on. "He's such an intense competitor and you'd think that the kids wouldn't go for that, but they really love him. It's a mutual thing, too."

Johnson received his undergraduate degree and his masters from Northeast Missouri State and he has been at Palatine ever since. "He get things down to a fine science in track," said Anderson. "He's so precise. He could tell you the score of next year's meet against Arlington. But he lulls people into thinking he's an old country boy who doesn't know anything about the city."

Anderson will announce Johnson's replacement hopefully within the next couple of weeks.

Fremd wins North again; South is a question-mark

A Herald Staff Report

Fremd struck for both its runs in the first inning, then Viking hurler Jeff Hanisch worked out of two serious jams to guide his team to a 2-0 shutout over Conant for its second Mid-Suburban North Division title in a row, and third in the last four years.

Bob Burke walked, Steve Dwyer tripled and Randy Kraft blooped a double to right, all after the out, for all the offensive support Hanisch needed to end the Cougars' conference season at 6-10.

Conant wasted an excellent opportunity to retaliate when they loaded the bases in their half of the first but couldn't score.

Jeff Ironside and Tim Dern both singled and advanced on a passed ball. Gary Oslance drew a base on balls, but Hanisch caught Mark Isakson looking, handled Dave Mills' popup, and induced Jim Cole to rap into a force play at second.

The Viking defense came to their right-hander's aid again in the third when the Cougars once more threatened. With one out, Oslance, an all-league outfielder, slammed a tremendous drive to center that hopped the fence for a ground-rule double, and held as Isakson skied to left. Mills then singled sharply down the right field line, but Oslance was erased on a picture book play at the plate, thanks to a perfect throw from Kraft.

Both squads shared in the futility of stranding baserunners, as each left seven men on.

After that second scare, Hanisch tamed the Cougars the rest of the way, allowing just two of the seven total safeties he yielded in the contest. He also walked two and struck out one.

Tim Dern went the route in recording the loss, likewise surrendering seven hits, while walking three and fanning nobody.

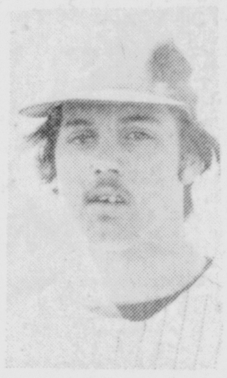
It's Been a Long Time

Prospect pulled the "Streng" on Wheeling's pennant aspirations.

Flexing his bat as well as his arm, Knight senior Rick Streng led host Prospect to a 10-1 romp past the Wildcats and knocked them out of the North Division title.

It was Prospect's first varsity baseball victory over the 'Cats since 1968, including summer league action. Coupled with a 2-0 Fremd triumph at Conant the same day it left Wheeling tied for second place with an 11-5 final record, one game behind the title-winning Vikes.



Ray Fairbanks

Rick Streng

Streng was most of the show. The blond bomber rapped out a pair of hits, scored twice and batted in four runs to key the Prospect offensive attack. And on the mound he limited the usually heavy-hitting Wildcat crew to just five safeties, blanking them on the scoreboard over the last six innings of the contest.

There were other ramifications to the verdict as well. The triumph pulled Prospect even with Forest View in the games-behind column at the top of the South Division standings.

After Wednesday the Knights were still a game down in the loss column. They're scheduled for a crucial showdown with the Falcons on Friday.

Against Wheeling, Prospect hammered out a total of 13 hits off three pitchers, quickly erasing a first inning 1-0 deficit with a three-run rally.

George Kaage had scored the 'Cat run, walking with two outs, stealing second and racing home on Paul Groot's single. In the bottom of the first Jim Anderson walked, Mike Quade singled and both were sacrificed along to set up Mike Radoll's two-run single.

As it turned out, that was all the hosts really needed but Mark Hartley singled and then Streng drove home Radoll with a single and Prospect had a 3-1 lead.

In the third, Wheeling starting hurler Mike Brzuskiewicz was lifted after loading the bases and Willie Kozel came in to put out the fire. Kozel then breezed into the fifth before getting tapped for four hits, including a double by Mark Hartley and RBI singles by Laddie Janda and Scott Hetherington.

An inning later a line shot back to the mound felled Kozel and he was removed from the game. Prospect proceeded to bang out three more hits, including a bases loaded double by Streng, and put the game on ice.

Fairbanks Fans 18

A crowd estimated at eight was treated to one of the finest pitching performances of the season as Ray Fairbanks struck out 18 Elk Grove Grenadiers in nine innings to give the Schaumburg Saxons a 2-1 Mid Suburban League victory.

It was the final game of the season for Schaumburg, closing out their MSL South record at 6-10. Elk Grove has one game against Forest View remaining.

Expectations about the quality of the game could not have been too high as only a few players' relatives bothered to attend the game. And when Fairbanks gave up two singles and a fielder's choice in the top of the first to give Elk Grove a 1-0 lead, it looked like those meager expectations would be fulfilled.

But Fairbanks ended the first by striking out Paul Gullikson and the rush was on. Fairbanks struck out the side in the second, third and fourth innings, his string of 10 straight ending where it began with Gullikson.

Fairbanks whiffed two more in the fifth and struck out the side again in the seventh. By then it was tied at one apiece and the game went into extra innings.

Schaumburg had tied the score in the top of the sixth. Kevin Michaelson drew a walk, one of seven awarded by losing pitcher Bob Ray, and went to second on a single to center field by Fairbanks.

Dave Sterle followed with a single up the middle that drove in Michaelson with the tying run. Fairbanks went to third and Sterle stole second to further threaten the Grens but Ray got out of the inning by fanning Mark Goergen and having a sure single by Keith Abraham robbed with a leaping catch by shortstop Steve Sheridan.

The Saxons scared the Grens again in the bottom of the seventh as Dave Groh and Fairbanks walked and Sterle collected his third hit of the game, a single. Ray Kralicek popped to the shortstop to kill the rally.

Again in the eighth a Saxon reached scoring position but couldn't get home. In the ninth they finally made it.

Ray lost complete control and walked Michaelson and Fairbanks, giving up the mound to reliever Steve Kliff. Kliff's precision was no better as he walked Sterle on four pitches to load the bases.

Kralicek singled to left to drive in Michaelson and win the game.

LOSING HURTS, and Forest View's Ken Butzen bows his head while his teammates look on from the dugout in the latter stages of the Falcons' 1-0 loss to Glenbrook North. Forest View managed just one base hit off the righthanded pitching of Scott Sanderson in Wednesday's sectional final in Northbrook. Losing pitcher Larry Monroe watches the action at the top of the picture but Butzen chooses not to look as the Falcon dream of a state title ends in defeat. (Photo by Dom Najolia)

It's us. Or rust.

Bring your new car to us soon after you buy it, and we'll really rustproof it. Inside the boxed-in areas of the body as well as underneath. (It takes nine patented spray tools to do a job like that.)

When we're done, we'll give you a 5-year/50,000-mile money-back guarantee against rust-through.

Or don't bring your new car to us. And expect to have the body start rusting to pieces from the inside out in a couple of years. Because no car is really rustproofed at the factory. Real rustproofing has to be done after a car is welded and bolted together. It just can't be done on the assembly line.

NAIA honors Paul Splittorff

Paul Splittorff, first pitcher to ever record 20 single season wins for the Kansas City Royals, has been elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Splittorff, of Arlington Heights, underwent formal induction yesterday at St. Joseph, Mo., in conjunction with the NAIA national baseball finals. A special ceremony was held Wednesday night in Kansas City before the Royals' game against Baltimore.

A graduate of Morningside College in Sioux City, Iowa, he compiled a 20-11 record last year with the Royals. Splittorff had a 3.98 earned run average with 110 strikeouts and 78 walks in 262 innings.

Williams top miler!

Scott Williams still has the Herald area mile record.

It was incorrectly reported Monday that Palatine sophomore Chuck Bell had run to a new area standard Saturday at the state finals with his 4:15.5.

Actually, Bell's clocking is the second best in history among all athletes in the area that covers Dist. 214, Dist. 211 and St. Viator.

Williams, who also ran at Palatine, covered the mile in 4:14.1 last year in the Top Ten Meet. The Herald area records only went through the state meet and Williams set his mark the following week. However, it does stand as the official area mile record.

The alert reader who first caught the mistake was Rich Saxton of Arlington Heights, a fine distance runner in his own day.

From campuses nationwide

—Maine West basketball center Doug Myers has been named to the Prep All-American Basketball Yearbook by Coach and Athlete Magazine. The yearbook will be available in August. Myers was mentioned here last week when it was announced he has signed a national letter-of-intent to play at William and Mary College.

—Local athletes will dot the football roster next fall at Millikin University in Decatur. They are Steve Kaminski of Conant, Terry Tansey of Palatine and Andy Donahue, also from Palatine.

Kaminski is a defensive tackle and middle guard. He was credited with 45 tackles and two recovered fumbles for Conant which had a 1-7 record.

Sports shorts

Tansey was a tri-captain of last fall's 3-5 Palatine team. He returned eight kickoffs for 183 yards and eight punts for 32 yards. He had a 4.3 rushing average and caught 10 passes for 172 yards.

Donahue completed 51-of-140 passes for 740 yards and seven Pirate touchdowns. He also scored four touchdowns rushing.

—Rod Kiolbassa, a 165-pound split end and defensive back from Forest View, has signed a letter-of-intent to play at the University of Dubuque in Iowa. He was the Falcons' Most Improved Player last season.

—Three area athletes have won varsity sports letters at Knox College in Galesburg. Honored were David Farmer of Des Plaines in track, Jessie Laffey of Palatine in womens' tennis and Ken Drost of Palatine in golf.

—Another football player who will attend Millkin in Decatur is Palatine's Mike McCostlin, a split end and safety. Last season, he caught 32 passes for 458 yards and scored six touchdowns. He also had two pass interceptions and five fumble recoveries.

—John Brodnan of Arlington Heights will be one of just four seniors on next year's varsity basketball team at Northwestern University. Brodnan appeared in three games last season. He graduated from Arlington in 1971.

—Mike Pettenuzzo, University of New Mexico star outfielder from Arlington Heights, has been selected to the All-Western Athletic Conference baseball team. He is the only honored member who didn't play for either Arizona or Arizona State.

Pettenuzzo batted .363 with seven home runs, 46 runs-batted-in, one dozen doubles and eight triples. He has also been a two-time football letterman at New Mexico. This summer, he'll play baseball in the Massachusetts-based Cape Cod League.

—Seven area athletes have received sports recognition at Monmouth College in downstate Monmouth. Honored in soccer were seniors Steve and Garrett Waecker of Des Plaines plus junior Sam Corallo of Arlington Heights. Freshmen Mike Nitch of Arlington Heights and Matt Turay of Mount Prospect lettered in swimming. Junior Chris Lesniak of Arlington Heights and senior Rick Karcher of Mount Prospect were honored in tennis.

—Senior catcher and co-captain Gerald Grybash of Palatine led Western Illinois University this season with a .995 fielding average, committing only one error in more than 200 chances. He also hit five doubles and batted .290.

Hole-in-one!

Dick Coleman of Mount Prospect has aced the 154-yard 12th hole at the Mount Prospect Country Club. Coleman carded the once-in-a-lifetime thrill with a six-iron while playing with Mike Spencer, also of Mount Prospect.

Northern Amateur dates

The Northern Illinois Men's Amateur Golf Association will conduct its 54-hole tournament from June 24-26 at Plum Tree National. Entries must be postmarked no later than June 10th. They can be obtained from Merritt Cook, Sr., 5214 W. Irving Park Road, Chicago.

Fire's Seymour here

Split end Jim Seymour of the Chicago Fire will act as honorary starter and sign autographs when the Arlington Heights Jaycees hold their annual Junior Sports Jamboree this Saturday in the Arlington High School football stadium.

Activities will begin at 9 a.m. and continue throughout most of the day. Winners from this local event will advance to regional Junior Sports Jamboree competition later this summer at Buffalo Grove High School.

Entry forms are available at area schools or tomorrow at Arlington High. Parental permission is required for participation.

Chick Evans Amateur

Indian Lakes Country Club in Bloomingdale will host the 1974 Chick Evans Amateur Golf Championship on Aug. 13-to-16. The tourney is open to male amateur golfers 13-to-19 years old with verified handicaps not exceeding seven strokes. For more information, call Carla Merriman at 782-0706.

Forest View recognized

The First Aider, an athletic training magazine published by Cramer Products, has cited Forest View High School for having 'a rather remarkable student athletic trainer program." The magazine devoted most of page 12 in its April, 1974, issue to Forest View's program, citing athletic direcor Bill Beckman and certified athletic trainer Ron Freeman for their direction.

Wildcat awards

Sports letters and numerals have been awarded to four area athletes who compete at Northwestern University. Mount Prospect's Rick Haaning lettered in baseball as did trackmen Bill Jarocki of Rolling Meadows and Scott Williams of Palatine. Matthew Borman, also Palatine, received numerals in tennis.

Wristwrestling finals

The third annual Illinois state wristwrestling championships will be held this Saturday at East Peoria High School. Results are sanctioned by the World Wristwrestling Association and entries will be taken until 30 minutes before competition begins.

Entrants will be divided into four weight classes: 150 pounds and under, 151-175, 176-200 and heavyweight. Winners desiring to make the trip will be placed in the world finals to be covered later this year by ABC Wide World of Sports from Petaluma, Calif.

For more information on Saturday's event, which starts at 6:30 p.m., call Jim Hussey at 309-691-6593.

Twin Ice dance lessons

The Randhurst Twin Ice Arena will offer a program of ballet, jazz and tap dance classes this summer in five and 10-week sessions. Instruction for adults and children will be under the direction of Camille Baranchik, a Mount Prospect resident who has extensive choreography experience.

One-hour classes on Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays or Fridays will begin on June 24th and end Aug. 30th. Enrollment fees are $25 for 10 weeks and $13.75 for five weeks.

Applications and complete information is obtainable by calling 259-3534 or visiting the Arena, located at the south end of the Randhurst Shopping center parking lot.

Good change for Lou

BUFFALO, N.Y. UPI — Lou Saban, coach of the Buffallo Bills, was a standout singlewing quarterback at the University of Indiana but was switched to linebacking when he joined the Cleveland Browns.

It was a good move because Saban became an all-star selection as linebacker for several years until he left the Browns in 1950 to begin his coaching career at Case Institute in Cleveland.

The program will run from 9:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. four days weekly for a total of 12 sessions. Basketball fundamentals will be stressed with games and scrimmages being provided after the first week. A swim in the Maine East pool will cap off each session.

Palatine Celtic soccer

In a frantic effort to make up all the games washed out by the spring rains, the Palatine Celtic Soccer Club palyed double sessions all weekend and held games at both Maple and Oak Parks. With only a handful of games left to be played, the spring session of the 1974 season ended with the Hawks leading the Senior boys, the Panthers leading the Intermediates and the Monkeys ahead of the Juniors. In the Senior Girls division the Blue Bells have a tenuous hold on first, and in the Junior the Snapdragons have it wrapped up for now.

Other than preparation for the Canadian trip on July 25th, there will be no more formal soccer until after Labor Day when the fall session starts.

GIRLS
Juniors

Morning Glories 1, Carnations 0

The Carnations played a strong offensive game with insides Joanne McElman and Donna Gerdes sparkin the offense and Jennifer Joll the defense. However, the outmanned Glories won the game on a goal by Margi Shellander assisted by Carol Wolber and strong defense by Dawn Dzikonski, Susan McGregor and goalies Beverly Roberts.

Snapdragons 2, Carnations 0

Carnation goalie Diane Popp let Dragons Lisa Montgomery and Sue Fraser past her in the first half, but held the Dragons scoreless in the second. Dragon Kim Felix earned herself a commendation from coaches Jennie Marsland and Julie Hierl for much improved play at halfback.

Carnations 1, Morning Glories 0

The Carnations, hungry for a win, finally put it all together with strong play by inside Donna Gerdes, halfback Michelle Repplinger, and forward Sharon Scolpino who made the only score of the game. Diane Popp earned the shutout. Glory Coach Billie Puls cited her fullbacks, Dawn Dzikonski and Susan McGregor, and center Nancy Shellander for outstanding play.

Snapdragons 3, Morning Glories 0

Glory defensewoman Dawn Dzikonski did her usual stellar job, but the division leading Dragons swept around her for goals by Nancy and Patty Melberg and Sue Fraser. They were supported by the superior play of forwards Cindy Curylo, Rosemarie Genovese and Sheryl Polachek, and fullback Marty O'Driscoll.

Blue Bells 1, Green Clover 0

A successful penalty kick by Peggy Malouf won this close game for the Bells, and their strong defense sparked by Diane Pfister at halfback and Kathy Felix and Patty Smith at fullback kept the Clover from retaliating. Coach Marge McKenna felt that her team played exceptionally well and commended halfback Carol Mercer and goalie Debbie Rathfon.

Daffodils 2, Clover 1

Daffodil Lori Solimene made the girls' only hat trick — one goal unassisted, and the remaining two with the help of Margo McCarthy and Lorrie Norys in the most aggressive girls' game seen to date. The Daffodils were also sustained by the forward play of Doris Mowakowski and the defensive play of Karen Bederson. Sheila Chambers scored the lone Clover goal and defensewomen Dana Howard and Carol Mercer (who was injured) merited coaches commendations.

BOYS

Monkeys 3, Alligators 1

The Monkeys won on goals by Tom Mueller (assisted by Mark Anderson), Bruce Peterson and Anderson (assisted by Rick Tierney). The team played well with Jimmy Nix showing up as most improved player. Kurt Smith (assisted by Steve Stolarcz) scored for the Alligators with Ken Hancock, Tom Falkenberg and Dan Dillman earning Coach Mahlmann's commendation.

Alligators 0, Golden Bears 0

Sunday's only scoreless tie was achieved on good field play by Alligators Chris Catlin, Steve Stolarcz, and Dave Hardy; and Bears Kevin Parsons, Paul Haddock, and Kevin McCarthy.

Monkeys 4, Sharks 2

Coach Bob Mueller congratulated his boys for a superb game played especially well by Don Schager at fullback, Mark Anderson who got a hat trick and was assisted by Tom Mueller and Matt McElman, and Mueller who scored once on an assist by Bruce Peterson. Tom Kearns monopolized the Shark scoreboard — once assisted by Dave Rapacz and once by Jim Shellander. Other outstanding Sharks were Andy Kropidlowski and Kevin Philliroog.

INTERMEDIATES
Lions 7, Wildcats 2

Lion strength manifested itself with two goals apiece by John Jennings and Bill Murphy and one each by John Leonora and Bob Falkenberg. Brad Lawrenz played his best match to date and Matt Helander and Robby Burns are coming into a nice game. Rich Drozd and speedy Mike Deutschmann scored for the Wildcats and had excellent support from Martin Kurtz and Bo Bergstrom.

Monkeys 4, Bears 1

Hans Hofman and Matt McElman led the Monkey's scoring with one goal and one assist apiece. Tom Mueller and Mark Anderson also scored and Bruce Peterson made the last assist. Most improved players were Brian Herlihy and Phillip John. Kevin Dorhout scored the Bear goal and Steve Obey, Jim Biondi and Mike Hey were very good at field play.

Panthers 6, Cougars 0

The Panthers dominated play with a hat trick by Paul Scheel and singles by Jeff Moore, Jim Martin and Jim Francis. Joe Cole earned the shutout, and good play by Kris Thibodeau, Rich Brandt, and Chris Schager helped to keep the Panthers in control.

Panthers 6, Tigers 0

The shorthanded Tigers, despite the best efforts of Jim Sample, Mike Dammes, and Lars Bergstrom, could not contain the Panther tide. Jim Martin dominated the scoring with a hat trick. His goals were assisted by Rich Brandt, Paul Scheel, Jeff Moore, and Ron Reiter. Scheel and Moore also scored their own goals assisted by Chris Schager and Brandt, and Jim Francis scored one unassisted. The strong defensive game played by Little Lange and Rick Ruzbasan helped goalies Joe Cole and Kevin Price hold their shutout.

Tigers 2, Cheetahs 2

This was Saturday's first tie with the Tigers playing their strongest game of the season and the Cheetahs showing the effects of a long layoff. Cheetah goals were by Jeff Seiter and Clark Luch (on a penalty kick). Tiger goals were by Keith LaMasse assisted by Paul McIntyre and Brian McCarthy assisted by Ken Mueller. Kevin Barrett, Lars Bergstrom, Mike Dammes and Ross Robertson played superb games at offense as did Jeff Simon, Jim Sample and goalie Bill Brandt on defense.

Panthers 10, Lions 0

The Panthers controlled the match on goals by Jeff Moore (4) and one each by Paul Scheel, Jim Martin, Jim Francis, Joe Cole, Scott Pfister, and Chris Schager. Joe Cole and John O'Driscoll shared the shutout.

Cheetahs 14, Wildcats 0

SENIORS
Owls 2, Blue Jays 2

An even game and a good strong effort by both teams. Owls Brad Byker and Andy Deutschmann shared scoring honors and Blake Stones, Brian La Masse, Mark Lush, and Jeff Sheppard were cited for outstanding play. Chris Braun scored for the Jays on an assist by Steve Norys as did Bob Martin on an assist by Jerry Norys.

Hawks 5, Cardinals 2

Hawk Mickey Solimene starred in this game, scoring four times. The 5th goal was by Kevin McKenna on an assist by Dave McCarthy. Good control by Mike McKenna, Greg, Brehm, and Tom and Paul Cornwell in man to man field play helped the Hawks to maintain dominance. For the Cardinals Joel Brown and Rich McElman proved to be a mighty pair with Brown scoring both goals on McElman's assists. There was also outstanding field play by Tod and Evan Privett, and Jon Miller.

Hawks 4, Eagles 0

The Eagles kept the ball in the Hawk's zone a fair share of the time, but were unable to get the ball between the goal posts and their defensive lineup, much aided by Matt Parker and Tom Seiter, was unable to stop the first place Hawks whose scoring was done by Kevin McKenna (2), Mickey Solimene (on a penalty kick), and Mike McKenna (1). Jim Ruzbasan earned the shutout and defenseman Elias Koutas a commendation from coach McKenna.

Road Runners 7, Cardinals 0

The Road Runners controlled the game on goals by Bill Landeene (2), Jay Babler (2), Tim Brehm (1), Mark Brehm (1), and Joe Nowakowski (1). Steve Landeene and Bob Cudney shared net tending and earned the shutout.

Bluejays 4, Road Runners 2

Bluejay Steve Norys led the scoring with 2 goals — both on assists by Bob Martin. Kevin Williams also made one on an assist by Jerry Morys and Jerry scored once on a penalty kick. Mark Brehm and Jay Babler kicked in the Road Runner tallies.

Cardinals 4, Eagles 2

The Cardinals ended a long fast, winning their last game of the season on goals by Phil Roberts (on a pelanty kick), Jim Machometa (assisted by Rich McElman), Tod Privett (assisted by Machometa), and Joel Brown (assisted by McElman). The scorers were supported by strong play from the whole team — Jim Reed, Joe Mingone, Evan Privett, Joe Feyka, John Shipley, Bill Dahlborn, Ron Grzesik, Jeff McClure, and goalie extraordinary, Andy McElman. Pete Mahlmann socred both Eagle goals with strong support from defensemen Danny Hirshfeld and Tom Seiter, and forward Matt Parker.

Hawks 4, Owls 2

Brad Byker scored twice for the Owls and Charlie Falkenberg, Greg Dorhout and Ron Hilicki played very well, but they were overcome by Hawk Strength — goals by Kevin McKenna (2), Mickey Solimene (1) and Tom Cornwell (1), plus strong defense by Mike Chambers, Dan Cummings, and Paul Cornwell and goalkeeper Jim Ruzbasan.

TRAVELING TEAM
Suburban Sports Celtic 6, CDJ 1

Super seasons

Two of golf's outstanding stars, Jack Nicklaus and Bruce Crampton, hold the distinction of having won the most money in a single season. Nicklaus won $320,542 in 1972 and $308,362 last year, when Crampton reached the figure of $274,266. Both Nicklaus and Crampton are former winners of the Western Open Championship, which will be contested June 27-30 at the Butler National Golf Club.

Thanks for 'Special' coverage

THANKS FOR COVERAGE

Dear Bob (Frisk),

A very belated letter to you to thank you for all your efforts in giving us such excellent coverage for the Special Olympics.

Our "special people" were so excited and thrilled to see themselves in the paper and it really meant so much to them to be recognized and treated like others.

Please extend my thanks also to Tom Grieger. He is a wonderful person, so patient and kind and a wonderful asset to the photo staff.

The time you spent was very worthwhile and rewarding to all as you can tell by the happy expressions on the pictures.

LITTLE LEAGUE MOM SPEAKS OUT

To All Little League Managers:

The recent article in the Herald (May 24's editorial: "Sports must be for kids") gave me the incentive to write down a gripe that I know is shared with other parents and their sons.

Most of the managers and coaches of our boys teams are dedicated fathers who should be applauded for giving so much of their time and talents. But the urge to have a winning team sometimes creeps into their management of a game.

Naturally, all teams have boys that are much more skilled at the game, but all the boys have joined the league so they can play ball and have fun. Managers are required to play each boy at least two innings. I have seen boys be in the lineup for an official two innings, but because of the outcome of the inning and the lineup, only get up to bat once or maybe not at all. The result of this is that the good players get more practice and get better and the other boys sit on the bench and watch.

It's all well and good to say "Sit there and cheer on your team." But just getting the opportunity to wear a uniform is not fulfilling the reason these boys joined baseball. So please, managers, give all the boys their chance to play a full game, even if it means benching the good players once in a while.

FALCONS HAVE VENTURED FARTHEST

Dear Fans Forum,

As a follower of Forest View's brilliant baseball team, I've been trying to find out what school was the last to go downstate from the Mid-Suburban League in baseball. Nobody seems to know. At the time of this letter, the Falcons had just won their first regional title.

J. F. Cox
Arlington Heights

The Falcons are the first to ever win a regional title from the MSL. The only teams to make it downstate outside the MSL have been Maine West and St. Viator.

ARGUMENT ABOUT GREAT GAME

Dear Sirs:

I've got $20 riding on this bet, so I dropped by your office Friday to settle it. Since you weren't there, I decided to leave this message for you in hopes that you'll run it in your letter column along with the answer. I'll be seeing my golfing buddy again next Friday night, so if I'm right it will pay for quite a few rounds. This is my question:

In 1959, Harvey Haddix pitched 12 perfect innings for the Pirates and was beaten with two out in the 13th by a Joe Adcock home run. My friend says he didn't hit a homer. I also say Bob Ruhl pitched most of that game for the Braves. He says no to that, too. If I'm right on both counts, I'll pocket the entire $20.

Bob Wright
Wheeling

Here are the answers. In that memorable effort, Lew Burdette (not Buhl) also pitching 13 scoreless innings to win the game for Milwaukee. Harvey's brilliant effort (May 26, 1959) was flawed when Felix Mantilla opened the bottom of the 13th by reaching base on a throwing error. After a sacrifice bunt, a runner was intentionally walked to bring up Adcock, who plopped the ball over the right centerfield fence to end the game. The man who was intentionally walked was none other than Henry Aaron. And when Hank didn't circle the bases after Adcock's blow, cutting across the diamond after touching second base, Adcock's blast was no longer officially a home run!
